Strike Stops Dublin Gas Supply

HOMES AND INDUSTRY SERIOUSLY AFFECTED

DUBLIN'S gas supply may stop to-day.

A lightning and unofficial strike by 150 men in the production plant stopped gas production at 2 o'clock yesterday, and the company has been supplying consumers from the gas stored in the gasometers. The pressure was immediately lowered, and supplies to Bray stopped at 7 p.m.

The strike followed a demand by the workers for time off, but the question has not been the subject of discussion between the men and the company. It is reported that the majority of the men concerned are not in favour of strike action, but a minority refused to return to work.

The night shift of 40 to 50 men did not report for duty last night.

The effects of a total stoppage of gas supplies on the city will be very serious. Laundries, restaurants, hospitals and factories will be hit hard, and if the strike continues for any length it may cause wide disemployment. For a very large percentage of homes the cessation of gas supplies will mean the cutting off of all cooking facilities, except the turf fire.

The company announced that the supply would cease this afternoon if the production workers did not return to work, but it is thought that workers in other departments may be prevailed upon to work the plant. If the retorts are allowed to cool weeks may be needed to get them into production again.

THE STOPPAGE

The Gas Company stated last night:—

"In 1937 the Gas Company, with the approval of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce, entered into an agreement with their shift workers, by which the hours of the shifts were arranged. This agreement has been in force from that date to the present time. On Wednesday last unofficial intimation was conveyed to the company that there was some dissatisfaction with the hours under the agreement. No substitute agreement was submitted, nor was any concrete demand for an alternative.

"To-day (Friday) the company's officials had interviews with the union leaders and men's delegates, and arranged that concrete demands would be put forward and considered under the auspices of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce on Tuesday next. This arrangement was come to at 1 o'clock p.m. today (Friday). At 2 o'clock p.m., without any further intimation whatever, all the men directly affected by the agreement, and all the yardmen at the Gas Company's works, struck.

"The company has had no opportunity whatsoever in discussing the matter; they have received no definite proposals, and have no knowledge of what the men want. Under the agreement one week's notice must be given before any strike can take place.

"The company deeply regrets the hardship which will be imposed on all classes of Dublin citizens by the stoppage of the gas supply, which the action of the men renders inevitable, unless they return for to-night's shift. The company has no alternative means of continuing the supply, and, if the men persevere in this action, the stoppage will not be a matter of days, but of weeks; for, if the plants are allowed to go cold, it will take several weeks before the gas supply can be resumed."

So dependant are Dublin homes on the maintenance of the gas supply that a stoppage of any length would throw the city into chaos. In thousands of homes not equipped with electric cookers or ranges the cooking of meals would become an almost insurmountable problem. Most citizens have adapted themselves to the severe restrictions imposed by the company in March, 1942. Should the new threat materialise the hardship to consumers without an alternative supply would be immense.

Confectionery and biscuit manufacturers, printers, laundries and hotels would be severely hit. When the restrictions came into force Messrs. W. and R. Jacob and Company, Ltd., had prepared a skeleton scheme for continuing production on a restricted scale. An official said yesterday that the cutting off of the supply would mean that manufacture of certain products would have to stop. Other confectionery manufacturers said that there would be nothing for it except to close down completely if supplies were cut off.

A laundry proprietor said that the cutting off of the gas would mean that he would have to close. Some laundries put electric irons into operation when the restrictions were announced, but gas-operated machines, chiefly concerned with the collar and dress-shirt plants, cannot be operated by electricity. At the moment many laundries are working only at night.

Most city hotels would be hard hit. One manager said that the restrictions played havoc with his establishment. Now, a continuance of the strike would mean that he would have to close. Some hotels have installed old-fashioned ranges, and one or two have turf and wood burning equipment.

Not the least affected would be the hospitals, which have much equipment which is worked by gas. Sterilisers in many of the smaller operating theatres are not electrically equipped. Emergency operations would be seriously inconvenienced.

STRIKERS ADAMANT

The men are members of two Unions—the Workers' Union of Ireland and the Irish Seamens' and Port Workers' Union, our Labour Correspondent stated last night. A striker stated that the majority of the men were opposed to strike action and were prepared to return to work, but a minority would not consent. Union officials tried to persuade the men to go back, but they were adamant.

The Ministry of Industry and Commerce was then informed of the position.

The Ministry, it is understood, had a message sent to the strikers intimating that if they returned to work a conference would be convened to investigate their claim. When again approached by union officials a section of the men refused to compromise, declaring their absolute refusal to return. At 6 o'clock last evening it became apparent that a deadlock had been reached, with its consequent threat to the citizens of Dublin, of whom at least 90 per cent. are dependent on gas for cooking alone.

Sounding views on possible eventualities, a reporter was told by union officials that an attempt probably would be made to man the furnaces by other categories of workers, while another official said that he feared that even the military might be called in if necessary to secure that the citizens were not victimised.

Proposed Social Service Ministry

When the Dail resumes, the National Labour Party will advocate the setting up of a Ministry of Social Services. A notice of motion, in the names of Deputies Everett and Pattison, asserts that measures for ensuring social security should be the first and most urgent consideration in the country's post-war planning, and calls on the Government to introduce proposals for the establishment of a scheme of social security, in which all the existing social services will be co-ordinated under a Ministry of Social Services, and all persons of gainful employment brought under the provisions of a comprehensive scheme of social insurance.

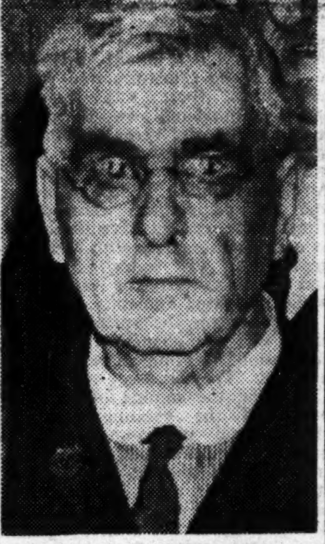
Death of Dr. R. J. Rowlette

WE regret to announce the death of Dr. Robert James Rowlette, which occurred at his residence, 55 Fitzwilliam square, Dublin, yesterday. Dr. Rowlette was the younger son of the late Matthew Rowlette, of Carncash, Sligo, and was in his 71st year.



DR. R. J. ROWLETTE

Dr. Rowlette received his earlier education at Sligo School, later entering Dublin University. He took his M.D. in 1899, and in the same year won the College Historical Society Gold Medal for Oratory. During the last war he served in the Royal Army Medical Corps, reaching the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel and being mentioned in despatches while serving in France.

He was elected to Dail Eireann in succession to the late Sir James Craig in 1933, being the first deputy returned to the Dail after the abolition of the Oath. He was elected to the Senate in March and August, 1938, as one of the representatives of Dublin University, and at the last Senate election just missed securing a seat by five votes.

Among the many appointments held at various times by the late Dr. Rowlette were the Presidencies of both the Royal College of Physicians in Ireland, of which he became a Fellow in 1913, and the Royal Irish Academy of Medicine. He was consulting physician to the Colonial Office, the Royal Hospital for Incurables, the Royal National Hospital for Consumption and Convalescent Home, Stillorgan, and physician to Mercer's Hospital, Dublin. Other appointments included that of King's Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacy in Dublin University and Professor of Materia Medica and Pharmacology at the Royal College of Surgeons.

Dr. Rowlette was the author of many papers on medical subjects and editor of the Journal of the Medical Association of Eire, was elected President of the Royal Academy of Medicine on October 4th.

ATHLETIC CAREER

At the time he entered Dublin University, Dr. Rowlette was a prominent figure on the athletic track, and continued so throughout his career at college. Although he had not the distinction of ever having won an Irish championship he was among the most prominent long-distance runners of his period. When he ceased to take an active part in track athletics he associated himself with the governing body, the Irish Amateur Athletic Association. He represented the association on many occasions at international athletic gatherings, and when the Irish Free State came into existence he was one of those who assisted to bring about a settlement of the long-standing dispute between the I.A.A.A. and the Gaelic Athletic Association, which associations had been at loggerheads since the formation of the latter body in 1885.

Unfortunately, this settlement was not of long duration, and after a while the Northern athletes drifted away from the Southern body. Dr. Rowlette did all that was humanly possible to preserve the foundations of the new association, but, although he worked very vigorously in that direction, his efforts were not successful, and a new Northern body came into existence. He suggested that there should be formed an Irish Athletic Federation, of which both of the bodies would be members and which would represent the country internationally. This settlement was not accepted by either side, and shortly after its rejection he retired from his position as a member of the Executive of the N.A.C.A. But his interest in athletics did not cease, and for many years he was a leading figure at all athletic meetings in Ireland. He attended the Olympic Games at Amsterdam as representative of the Irish Times, his dispatches from that city being much appreciated, not only in this country, but across the Channel. He was Honorary Physician to the British Olympic team at Antwerp in 1920 and to the Irish Olympic team at Paris in 1924 and Amsterdam, 1928.

How Will U.S. Be Paid For Food Exports?

WHEN President Roosevelt said yesterday that the United States expected to export large quantities of food now and in the post-war period, he was asked how the United States would be paid. He replied by asking whether a little village below Rome, which had no money to pay for food, should starve, and indicated that in the immediate post-war period the United States would not expect cash payments for exported food and other relief materials.—(Reuter.)

Radiography For Health Examinations

A FLUOROGRAPHIC outfit for mass radiography, the first of its kind to be seen in Ireland, has been temporarily installed in the premises of Messrs. Kodak, Ltd., at Rathmines. Yesterday, Mr. J. L. Crooks, London, explained the working of the instrument, and on Monday next at 5 p.m. a practical demonstration will be given at Sir Patrick Dun's Hospital.

The unit first came on the market in Great Britain in the spring of this year. With a 1.5 lens and taking one inch square pictures on 35mm stock, photographs can be exposed at the rate of 200 an hour. The apparatus can be easily moved from place to place to obtain a survey of the health of the workers in a factory or industrial concern. In Great Britain there are about 70 mass radiography units in use in hospitals, in the Services and in civilian schemes; some factories have installed their own units.

"Mass radiography," said Mr. Crooks, "is the best method of carrying-out a survey to detect tuberculosis in its initial stages." To do this with the standard X-ray equipment would be extremely costly; in addition, the equipment would be too cumbersome to install temporarily in factories and industrial concerns, he went on, and it would be impossible to carry out examinations at the necessary high speed. With the development of the miniature unit, the only limit to the speed of examination is the time taken to fill in the identification cards, and an effective speed of 200 people per hour is quite possible.

The unit is now virtually foolproof, Mr. Crooks said.

The photographs are projected on to a screen for viewing. In some doubtful cases, re-examination by ordinary X-ray apparatus is necessary to make a certain diagnosis, but, according to Mr. Crooks, the proportion is only about 6 per cent. The cost of the miniature film is something less than ¼d. per picture, as compared with 3s. for the standard size plate; the cost of the unit complete is £500.

One Dublin hospital has been using a miniature mass-radiographic unit for some time past; it was assembled in Dublin.

BENEFITS FOR NORTH

THE estimated annual cost of providing the increased benefits proposed in the Unemployment Insurance (Increase of Benefits) Bill, which will be presented for second reading in the Northern Ireland House of Commons on Tuesday next, is £140,000.

Under the bill, the text of which was published yesterday, the rate of benefit proposed for unmarried women is greater than that for married women, the weekly payments proposed being 22s. and 20s. respectively. A married woman is to be treated as unmarried if she supports an incapacitated husband or lives apart from her husband and cannot get financial assistance from him.

Under the general scheme allowances for adult dependants are to be raised from 10s. to 16s., and in the Agricultural scheme from 9s. to 14s. The maximum rate of benefit under the agricultural scheme will be £2 14s., compared with the present £2 1s.

The following are the proposed rates of benefit under the general scheme, existing rates being given in parentheses: Men, 21 and over, 24s. (20s.); unmarried women, 21 and over, 22s. (18s.); married women, 21 and over, 20s. (18s.); men, 18 and under 21, 19s. (16s.); women, 18 and under 21, 17s. (14s.); boys, aged 17, 12s. (9s.); girls, aged 17, 10s. 6d. (7s. 6d.); boys, aged 16, 7s. (6s.); girls, aged 16, 6s. (5s.); allowance for adult dependant, 16s. (10s.); allowance for each of first two dependant children, 5s. (4s.); allowance for each other dependant child, 4s. (3s.).

Under the agricultural scheme the proposed rates include: Men, aged 21 and over, 22s. (18s.); women, 21 and over, 18s. (15s.); men, 18 and under 21, 18s. (15s.); women, 18 and under 21, 15s. (12s.); boys, aged 17, 10s. 6d. (7s. 6d.); girls, aged 17, 9s. (6s.); boys, aged 16, 6s. (5s.); girls, aged 16, 5s. (4s.).

The contributions will remain unchanged. It is estimated that the scheme will cost £140,000 a year. This will come from the Unemployment Insurance Fund, and, if necessary, Britain will contribute £126,000 under the parity arrangement.

Roscrea Factory May Re-open Soon

It is anticipated that the Roscrea meat products factory will re-open at an early date, as a result of the restoration of the water supply from Neilstown reservoir by North Tipperary Board of Health. This water supply was disconnected over two months ago, and on Saturday last the factory closed down.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE RIGA STRONGHOLD

SOVIET forces have taken Riga, stated an Order of the Day from Marshal Stalin, addressed to Generals Maslennikov and Eremenko, issued in Moscow last night.

Soviet forces have also landed in Petsamo, in the area of Northern Finland.

Riga is the capital and principal port of Latvia. It lies on the Dvina, seven miles up the river from the Gulf of Riga, and has a population of nearly 500,000. It was occupied by the Germans on August 16th, 1941.

The capture of this German stronghold and naval base means that all the Baltic capitals have now been freed from German occupation. Kaunas and Vilna, the provisional and actual capitals of Lithuania, were the first, followed by Tallinn (Reval), capital of Estonia.

Colonel von Hammer, the German commentator, stated that German rearguards on the eastern bank of the Dvina and those within Riga itself were withdrawn to the western bank of the river.

The nickel port of Petsamo, at the mouth of the Petsamo river, is only 12 miles from the Norwegian frontier. The Berlin message recording the landing here said that the Russians had captured Liinahamari.

An Associated Press report that Russian tanks and infantry have stormed into East Prussia, 12 miles N.-E. of Tilsit, has not as yet been announced officially, but Moscow Radio stated yesterday that the frontier had been reached at three points.

A Berlin comment on the large-scale Soviet offensive north of Warsaw, quoted by Reuter, said that the effort here is clearly an attempt to ensure a springboard for the conquest of the area of Danzig, thus cutting East Prussia from the Reich. Col. von Hammer stated that near Rozan the Russians gained some ground, and also widened their bridgehead over the Narew. Martin Hallensleben, the German News Agency commentator, announced later that "German troops have pulled out from the ruins of Rozan."

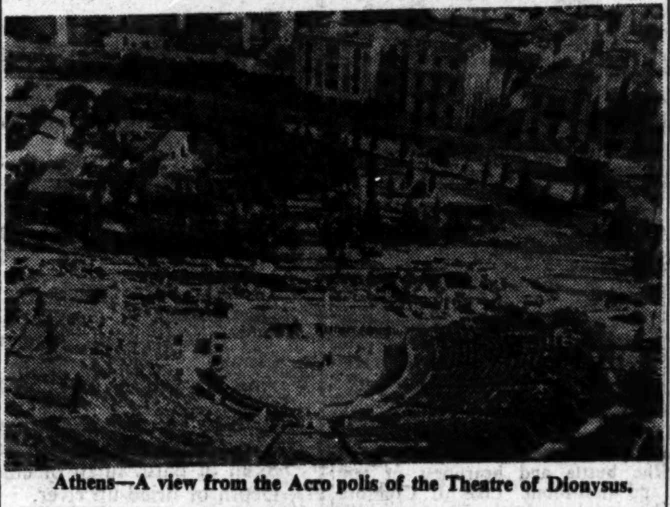
Reuter's Moscow correspondent cables that Soviet and German tanks are fighting in the great Hungarian plain in a battle which may decide the fate of Budapest.

A Berlin comment on the 72-hours' old battle said that "the outcome is still in the balance."

The Yugo-Slav radio, quoting a special communiqué, announced that units of the first and 12th Yugo-Slav Corps have penetrated to the "walls" of Belgrade, and that Ripanj (about 12 miles south of Belgrade) and Beli Potok (about the same distance south-east) have been captured.

A German News Agency report said that Soviet pressure in Northern Finland "continues unabated, and is intended to crush the German forces in the extreme northern part of Finland by converging attacks from the north-east and south-east."

Colonel von Hammer stated that "The Soviet forces apparently intend not only to destroy the German forces in Northern Finland, but also to reach Northern Norway by a thrust beyond it."



Athens—A view from the Acro polis of the Theatre of Dionysus.

Germans Evacuate Greek Capital

A ROME Radio report, recorded by the Associated Press, quoted an official announcement by Allied Headquarters that Athens has been evacuated by the Germans.

Fighting in the outskirts of the Greek capital was reported in an earlier message.

The liberation of Athens was twice announced already, only to be denied as "premature" by military circles. It is now confirmed by a message received by the Greek Minister of Marine, which, says a Cairo cable, stated that Athens and the Piraeus were liberated on Thursday evening. "Full order reigns and little demolition has been carried out by the Germans."

Three proclamations were broadcast last night from Allied Headquarters, Mediterranean, calling on Greeks to co-operate with British forces already in Greece and with relief expeditions which are shortly to land with food and medical supplies, states Reuter.

The proclamations—from the Greek Government, General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson and from Lieutenant-General Ronald Scobie, G.O.C. British Forces in Greece—were broadcast in Greek from numerous stations, including Radio Paris.

The Greek Government proclamation told citizens that re-establishment of national sovereignty is one of the three cardinal purposes for which Allied troops are already on Greek soil. Others are to dispose of German troops still remaining in Greece and co-operation with Greeks towards complete and speedy defeat of the enemy.

The proclamation called for obedience to the Government by guerrilla and clandestine patriotic organisations, police and all branches of the Greek Army, and instructed civil servants to remain in their posts. "Those among them who conducted themselves in a manner contrary to national conscience will be removed," the proclamation added.

It also warned that the Greek State will impose speedy punishment on collaborators, and ordered isolated individuals or organisations to refrain from undertaking punitive action

Bremen and Hamburg Bombed

Heavy bombers caused severe damage at two Karl Borgward motor transport plants and a Focker-Wulf components factory at Bremen on Thursday, said American Air Headquarters last night. Bremen's main power station received several hits and was set on fire.

The Klockner steel plant at Osnabruck received heavy damage. The Kupfer Drahtwerk, which makes electric cables, shell cases and fuses, was also hit.

A British Air Ministry communiqué yesterday stated that on Thursday night aircraft of the R.A.F. Bomber Command attacked objectives in Hamburg and Western Germany. One aircraft is missing.

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Headquarters, Mediterranean, stated last night that very strong forces of Italian-based heavies yesterday attacked strategic targets in Silesia and the Vienna area, and communications objectives at Vienna and in Western Hungary. Targets included the Florisdorf railway yards and the nearby Austrian motor works in the western quarter of Vienna; the Banhida railway yards, 35 miles west of Budapest, and the Szekesfehervar railway yards, 45 miles south-west of Budapest.

Bomb Deaths In Britain

The British Ministry of Home Security announces the following figures of civilian casualties due to air raids during the month of September:—

Killed or missing, believed killed, 170; injured and detained in hospital, 360.

Girl Injured In Collision

While cycling at the junction of Mespil road and Baggot street at 10 o'clock last night, Miss Maura Glynn, aged 22 years, draper's assistant, of 6 Thorncastle street, Ringsend, was in collision with a Wicklow-bound G.S.R. bus. She received severe head and thigh injuries. Her condition is critical.

Cement Restrictions Modified

Under an Order made by the Minister for Industry and Commerce, restrictions on the sale of cement have been modified to allow the sale of cement in quantities not exceeding 10 cwts. without a permit. The previous limit was 5 cwts.

£1,350 Award For Fall in Hospital

Judge Barra O Briain, at Clare Circuit Court, gave judgment for £1,350, with costs, to Michael Halpin (35), Tullaroe, Kilkee, a small farmer and carpenter, who sued Clare County Council for £3,000 damages. He alleged that, while a patient in Kilrush District Hospital, he became delirious as a result of illness, and, in consequence of the failure of the Council to provide proper care and supervision, in the form of a nurse or other attendant in constant attendance, went through a window and fell to the ground, eighteen feet below, causing permanent injuries to his back.

Polish Premier Hopeful

M. Molotov, Soviet Foreign Commissar, received M. Mikolajczyk, Polish Premier; M. Romer, Polish Foreign Minister, and Professor Grabski, President of the Polish State Council, yesterday afternoon for the first time since their arrival in Moscow. The interview was brief.

Marshal Stalin, Mr. Churchill and M. Mikolajczyk, Polish Prime Minister, conferred for two hours last night, states Reuter.

"I am most hopeful. I should not have come to Moscow on a second visit if I were not hopeful," said M. Mikolajczyk in Moscow yesterday.

The invitation to return to Moscow was, he felt, a sincere expression of the British and Russian desire to see the "vexing" Polish problems satisfactorily solved.

President Roosevelt said yesterday in Washington that he was being kept fully abreast of the Churchill - Stalin conference in Moscow. He added that he had no idea whether he would meet Marshal Stalin this year.

"Let Me Alone," Says G. B. S.

"May heaven defend me from Shaw societies; I have more present and future work on hand than I have time for, and the societies are concerned only with my old work that is for me past and done with. My one prayer to them is: Do what you like among yourselves, hold your meetings, read your papers, discuss my views, or what you imagine to be my views, accept my blessing, but for God's sake let me alone."

In these words, read at last night's meeting of the Bernard Shaw Society of Ireland, Mr. Bernard Shaw gave his blessing to the society.

American Tanks Enter Ruins of Aachen

AMERICAN tank-destroyers, with infantry ahead of them, crashed their way into Aachen yesterday morning, and, states Reuter, are now clearing the eastern section of the city.

So far no artillery fire has been encountered, but machine-gun and rifle nests are holding out bitterly.

Casualties were very light as American infantry made their way into the city. Fires were burning on all sides. Thunderbolts were still dive-bombing a short distance ahead.

Reuter, A.P. and P.A.

An A.P. correspondent who entered the city with the American forces cabled last night:—

"The unit I was with entered the city proper at 9.30 this morning, our artillery having cut out a lane ahead of us. We had to cross 16 rows of railway tracks to reach the main part of the town. We are meeting no artillery fire yet, but the German machine-gun nests are holding out bitterly.

"Buildings are in flames ahead of us, and machine-gun fire crackles in the street.

"The unit is the first actually to enter Aachen proper, and we have found here not a city at all, but a grimy derelict of what was once a city, with ruins everywhere.

"It is clear that the vast majority of Aachen's normal population of 160,000 are no longer here. It will be surprising if we find as many as 10,000 civilians.

This picture of Aachen was given by Kurt Pauli, a German News Agency front reporter, quoted by Reuter last night:—

"What once were roads are now mazes of mountains of bricks and stones from collapsed houses, canopied by a criss-cross of slashed cables. The ancient Town Hall is completely destroyed. The throne, on which 37 German Emperors were crowned, is embedded in sandbags.

The gap between the Americans coming round Aachen from the north and from the south has now closed to half-a-mile.

Sixty-four German tanks were destroyed by Thunderbolt dive-bombers and artillery near Wurselen, east of Aachen.

The German armoured force was trying to assemble for an all-out blow against the withdrawal gap in order to widen it for the Aachen garrison. The Germans appeared to be throwing in some of the best reserves in the area. Scores of tanks supported by infantry were attempting to relieve the doomed garrison.

The U.S. spearhead driving to encircle Aachen from the south now have Crucifix Hill firmly in their hands. It and an adjoining ridge now give General Hodges' men good observation of the battlefield for miles around.

STREET BATTLE

After six days' continuous fierce street fighting in the little town of Maizieres-les-Metz, six miles north of Metz, the Germans are still resisting in the southern part of the town. Aided by artillery and mortars, U.S. 3rd Army infantry have made some progress. Twenty miles east of Nancy American troops entered Coincourt, while advanced units fanned out beyond the town.

Following the capture of Overloon, the British 2nd Army yesterday pushed on to occupy the communications centre of Venraij, states A.P.

Venraij, on the eastern flank of the Nijmegen salient, is under five miles from the River Maas, and about ten miles from the German frontier west of Geldern.

American armoured units are operating in support of the British troops in the Overloon area, thrusting against German positions south of the town, in a further effort to broaden the right flank of the Nijmegen corridor. The main fighting is now in a large wood just south of Overloon, where the Germans are resisting strongly.

It is a tough battle over country where rapid movement either for tanks or infantry is impossible.

The British are pressing forward on a 7,000-yard front, the infantry pushing deeper and deeper into the trackless forest, almost jungle-like, with its thick undergrowth and gummy marshes.

While the battle was going on in the Overloon area a miniature "naval engagement" took place on the Lower Rhine, west of Arnhem. A British patrol crossing the river in small boats encountered a German patrol crossing in the opposite direction. Fire was exchanged in mid-stream, and four or five Germans succeeded in reaching the south bank.

There are further signs that the Germans are diverting armoured forces from the Arnhem area to reinforce their lines in the region of Aachen.

To the south the Germans are reacting bitterly to the Canadian threat to the approaches to Antwerp, which has already virtually sealed the neck of the "bottle" leading to Walcheren and Beveland. The Scheldt pocket remains very much the same, with hard fighting going on in the Leopold Canal bridgehead. The Canadian position here is firmer and German attacks have lessened.

British Offensive In Italy

British troops of the 8th Army launched a general offensive in Italy yesterday, New York radio, quoted by Reuter, stated last night. "The British troops," the radio said, "broke a ten-days' deadlock, which had stalled their advance to the rim of the Po Valley, and swept forward in a general offensive which gained ground everywhere, except on the narrow Adriatic coastal region."

Captain Sertorius, Chief Military Correspondent of the German Overseas News Agency, wrote last night that the drive along the Florence-Bologna road has become a mass ouslaught, strongly supported by artillery and a large number of battle planes. Small breaches were made in the German lines, but these were, in the main, eliminated, he said.

Fierce battles are raging for Livergnan, 12 miles from Bologna, states Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Mediterranean H.Q. The American advance has been hampered for days by bad weather, which now shows signs of breaking everywhere along the front. The Germans are resisting fiercely everywhere, and making costly counter-attacks.

Meeting Of Hungary's Defence Council

Colonel-General Ludwig von Csatay, Hungarian Army Minister, gave a report on the country's military situation at a meeting of the Defence Council of the Hungarian Upper House yesterday, says the Hungarian News Agency, quoted by Reuter.

"Field-Marshal Archduke Joseph of Hapsburg presided, and the Foreign Committee of the Upper House has been convoked for next Tuesday morning to hear a report by the Foreign Minister on the external situation," the Agency reported.

Japanese Losses At Formosa

Admiral Chester Nimitz's Headquarters announced last night that 63 Japanese ships were sunk, probably sunk or damaged, and 396 planes destroyed, in a two-day attack on Formosa and Pescadores.

The attacks took place on the evenings of October 11th and 12th. American losses for the two days were 45 planes.

Formosa is in the China Seas, 125 miles off the China coast, and the Pescadores Islands are a small group, about 60 miles off the west coast of Formosa.—(Reuter.)

Holidays Question For Dail

When the Dail meets next week, Mr. J. P. Pattison (Lab.), Kilkenny, will ask whether the Minister for Industry and Commerce intends to have the Holidays (Employees) Act of 1939 amended to cover cases similar to that in which a railway employee recently was refused annual leave because, owing to illness, he had been absent from work for more than one month, although qualifying in other respects for leave. The matter was before the Supreme Court on Wednesday last, when an appeal against the ruling of Mr. Justice Haugh, which upheld the railway company's action, was dismissed.

1,000 War Prisoners Drowned

A Japanese News Agency report picked up in New York yesterday said that more than 1,000 British and American prisoners of war perished when a Japanese transport was torpedoed by a submarine off the Philippines on September 21st. Only 175 were saved in spite of the efforts of a Japanese rescue party, it added.—(Reuter.)

Police Chase Mail Van

When John McKee, Banbrook Hill, Armagh, who was driving a Post Office mail van to collect mails at the Armagh Railway Station, entered his house at midnight to collect his overcoat, he heard the engine of the van being started. On going out, he saw the vehicle moving off, with someone at the wheel, and it got up speed before he could reach it.

Police gave chase in a car, which overtook the van a few miles outside the town, and a man has been detained.

Disturbances In Belgium

Scores of disturbances broke out in Brussels and other Belgian cities yesterday as thousands of people lined up before public buildings in an effort to exchange their old franc notes for new Government - issued ones.

The old notes of 100 francs or more became invalid yesterday, and thousands waited until the last day of the five-day period given to exchange the old for the new to turn in the old notes.

War profiteers attempting to cash in on their black-market profits made many attempts to make partial declarations and to have others turn in their francs. Many were arrested, including 60 in Brussels, and millions of francs were confiscated.

Several hundred members of the resistance movement were provided with arms, and called out to assist the police.—A.P.

The Kerry Farmers' Association, at the annual convention in Firies, decided to contest the South Kerry by-election.

Congratulations Mr. Breadwinner!

Congratulations to you — the family breadwinner — on doing a good job. You form the backbone of our country for on you depends the prosperity of the State. These hard times are proving your worth to the Nation.

Yes, you are important to your country, but you are even more important to your family. You are their source of livelihood. Without your support they could not exist. Yet, if anything should happen to you they would lose that support—except you arrange now for their future protection.

You can secure this protection for your family at the cost of a few pence a day by effecting a Whole Life Policy with Ireland's leading Life Office.

Where appropriate, prices for smaller quantities must not be at a higher rate than the standard maximum rate. For instance, the price of a quarter pound of whole rice must not exceed 4½d.

It is illegal to sell or offer for sale any of these commodities at a price in excess of the appropriate price. Where overcharging is suspected, the purchaser should ask for a statement in writing signed by the vendor or his agent, and containing (1) name and address of the vendor, (2) date of sale, (3) description of commodity, (4) net weight, measure or number of the commodity (as the case may be), (5) sum charged. This statement should be forwarded to the Department of Supplies, Ballsbridge, Dublin, so that proceedings can be instituted against the offender. Purchasers should report without delay any instance of refusal to furnish the required statement.

Purchasers are also reminded that it is illegal for a retailer to sell any of the above-mentioned articles (a) upon terms that the purchaser, in addition to purchasing such article, shall purchase any other article, or pay for the rendering by the vendor of any service in connection with such article, or any other article, or (b) as part of a lot consisting of such article and any other article.

Stop that Tickling

Few things are more exasperating than the nagging cough which so often accompanies a cold. Coughing is mentally and physically bad for you; it causes weariness and headaches; by keeping you awake at night, it lowers your vitality and, therefore, your efficiency. You cough—as you know only too well!—because of a persistent tickling at the back of the throat. Zubes Cough Cure—which costs 1/3 a bottle—will stop that tickling and, therefore, the cough.

ZUBES COUGH CURE

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

New Verse

By Austin Clarke

Elegies. By Alex Comfort. Routledge. 5/-.

The Inward Animal. By Terence Tiller. The Hogarth Press. 3/6.

Morning Songs and Other Poems. By Eiluned Lewis. Macmillan. 4/-.

Shadows of Chrysanthemums and Other Poems. By E. J. Scovell. Routledge. 5/-.

Green Song and Other Poems. By Edith Sitwell. Macmillan. 5/-.

THE later poetry of Rainer Maria Rilke still continues to influence the younger English writers, and there are, at least, two full-sized translations of the Dueiner Elegien. The Austrian poet wrote within the shadows of the last European war, and this accounts, no doubt, for his increasing preoccupation with thoughts of death. Like Yeats, he had a romantic passion for castles among damp woods, and one cannot help suspecting that his mystical cult of dissolution was not completely genuine. Rilke never quite escaped from the artistic attitude of the 'nineties, and he certainly knew the value of singularity. But the morbid attraction of his poems in this age of calamity is understandable. The eight Elegies which Mr. Alex Comfort gives us in his new book are a tribute to the work of Rilke. The highly concentrated and difficult German poems were written over a period of many years, but Mr. Comfort's Elegies have been composed obviously in modern haste. Nevertheless, we cannot quite blame Mr. Comfort if he lacks as yet the necessary mental experience and technical equipment for his ambitious task.

On the last page of Mr. Comfort's book there is a short poem about an Irish village, which shows very well the method of modernist verse. The theme is simple and old-fashioned, a description of swarming starlings.

> At Rush, in Ireland, near the station > crowded moving nipples of the yew > bushes > carry each one at evening a dark bird > a swinging starling, moved by the wind > over > the clouds' white meadows to and fro > and the fine beaks like thorns > balance high on the black candles, corals > moved by the tides of wind in air as > clear as water.

Mammary yews, cloud meadows, thorns balancing on twig candles, South Sea corals moved by tides—Mr. Comfort flings a handful of disassociated images at us, and asks us to form from them our own picture of a Co. Dublin watering place.

Mr. Terence Tiller has been in Egypt in an official civilian occupation during most of the present war, and in his poems he describes the sudden impact of the East upon his mind. He is satiric, but he enjoys his satire, for he has caught something of the excitement, the bustle and heartiness of tent and mess-room. Like Mr. Comfort, he indulges freely in the poetic horrors, and is a veritable master of the mixed metaphor.

> The spider in the hour-glass > knows when to net her soft eclipse > upon the double Mars of lips, > and ebb with ripples round your face.

But at times Mr. Tiller realises that discipline is as necessary in the writing of verse as in the military formation of fours. In "Egyptian Restaurant," an attempt to express crowd consciousness, he can develop an ordinary image and give it value.

> Now I have dropped a stone in the > reflection,
> broken the room into a thousand rooms:
> a thousand edges of acute refraction > blaze in the mirrors, in whose toss of beams > we sit as under a spray of images, > real where all is fleeting, plural, like > the circling crowd of jewelled ghostly Us.

As a happy father, I am always embarrassed when nursing mothers want to show me their poems. Both Mrs. Eiluned Lewis and Mrs. E. J. Scovell have devoted themselves in their books to the poetry of the perambulator. Mrs. Lewis is a traditional poet and prattles in pretty rhymes over her baby.

> There is no treasure
> In all the world
> Worth one baby
> Who, washed and curled,
> Her bath time over,
> Her day before her,
> Kicks and crows
> While her parents adore her.

Mrs. Scovell is a modernist, to whom motherhood is a metaphysical problem.

> I am absorbed and clouded by a sensual > love
> Of one whose soul is sense and flesh the > substance of
> Her spirit; and her thoughts, like grass > shadowed by the wind's flight,
> Her hands' bemused and under-water dance > in light.

At times, however, Mrs. Eiluned Lewis can write with charm, and Mrs. Scovell, when she forgets the task of analysis, can give us direct and moving lines. In its restraint, the following quatrain has a tragic significance which lingers in the mind.

> The days fail: night broods over afternoon;
> And at my child's first drink beyond the > night
> Her skin is silver in the early light.
> Sweet the grey morning and the raiders > gone.

"Green Song" is the title of Miss Edith Sitwell's new volume of poems. It might have been called Yellow, Golden or Russet Song, for the words, with their vague, associative meanings and autumn symbols, seem to move like heavy wains through September haze. In her notes Miss Sitwell quotes passages from mystics and philosophers which have inspired her. By comparing the poems and passages we can actually see the poet at work. One brief example will suffice. Here is a quotation from Thomas Aquinas:

> He gives us men for an refreshment the bread of angels. On the breaking of the Bread Thou art not broken, nor art Thou divided. Thou art eaten, but like the Burning Bush, Thou art not consumed.

In Miss Sitwell's rendering the precise images of mediæval Latin mingle with the voluminous style of Fraser's "Golden Bough."

> O Thou who art eaten, but like the Burning
> Bush
> Art not consumed—Thou Bread of Men and > Angels—
> The Seraphim rank on rank of the ripe > wheat—
> Gold-bearded thunders and hierarchies of > heaven
> Roar from the earth. . . .

When I was an apprentice writer and wrote a poem on a biblical subject, I quoted the perfect line, "A land flowing with milk and honey," but I added an adjective, and so the line ran, "flowing with milk and lavish honey." The critic of the Manchester Guardian pointed out my woeful tautology as an example of bad taste. I tried never to forget that lesson.

The Mass

The Mass: From Shadows to the Truth. By Arthur J. Clarke. Burns, Oates and Washbourne. 7/6 net.

IN this book Fr. Clarke outlines and explains the teaching of the Catholic Church on the Mass. Primarily, the work is intended for children and adolescents, but might well be referred to by all others. As a history of the rise and growth of the service itself, the book is of additional value. Catholic parents would do well to place it in the hands of their offspring, by reason of its soundness and the great practical piety it inculcates.

EX LIBRIS—21.

THE FORGOTTEN WOMAN

By R. Wyse Jackson

R. WYSE JACKSON.

THE Fat White Woman whom Nobody Loves is a pathetic and much maligned person. Very few of us take the trouble to try to get to know her. She grows old and tired as the maiden aunt or companion-help who is tolerated but not regarded—a necessary nuisance who, in a fussy, brainless way, serves the more fortunate and gets very little thanks for it. The perfect example of the species is that dear, inarticulate, tea-cosy, Rebecca Dingley, lifelong shadow-chaperon to Swift's Stella.

Nobody loves her. No writer except Alice Meynell has given her a page of biography all to herself. Every biographer of Swift has written excitedly and voluminously about the women who associated with the Dean. Stella; the star-crossed Vanessa; Varina, whom the young vicar of Laracor choked off so brutally with a letter to say that he would consider matrimony if her fortune were competent and her person cleanly; Letitia Pilkington, the shady little adventuress; Betty Jones of Leicester, whose hypothetical designs mother Swift foiled—they all appear in the printed page and everybody knows all about them. But who cares for poor Dingley?

Sheridan's Comment

Nobody, apparently. Almost the only scrap of early biography available is an unchivalrous condemnation from Sheridan.

> The other lady, Mrs. Dingley, was far from meriting any share in Swift's esteem and affection. She was merely one of the common run of women, of a middling understanding without knowledge or taste; and so entirely selfish as to be incapable of any sincere friendship or warm attachment. In short, she was perfectly calculated to answer Swift's purpose in the post she occupied.

That ungentlemanly passage spoils Sheridan's "Life" for at least one reader, and by way of reaction it confirms Alice Meynell's plea that "No one else in literary history has been so defrauded of her honours . . . The sentimentalist has fought against Mrs. Dingley from the outset. He has disliked her, shirked her, misconceived her and effaced her."

There is one fact which give the lie to the rather cruel verdict of posterity. Swift likes her. Yes—the Gloomy Dean, who hates so many fools and knaves, has a warm affection for poor Mistress Rebecca. It can be felt in one or two of his poems. There is a gentle good humour in his reference to her, which is reserved for few. For example, there is that joint set of verses to his dour old Presbyterian housekeeper, Mrs. Brent, and to our comfortable, bustling, fussy, busybody:

> Dingley and Brent
> Wherever they went
> Ne'er minded a word that was spoken;
> Whatever was said,
> They ne'er troubled their head,
> But laughed at their own silly joking.

Rebecca is one of those dear people eternally busy doing little niggling bits of household work which somehow never show much result. Here she is, "healthy, fat and fair," sketched in a few vivid strokes of Swift's economical pen.

> For though philosophers maintain
> The limbs are guided by the brain,
> Quite contrary Rebecca's led;
> Her hands and feet conduct her head;
> By arbitrary power convey her,
> She ne'er considers why or where:
> Her hands may meddle, feet may wander,
> Her head is but a mere by-stander:
> And all her bustling but supplies
> The part of wholesome exercise.

In Ireland

Mistress Dingley was apparently a cousin once removed of Sir William Temple's. She had been left with a tiny annuity of twenty-seven pounds a year, and in middle age became Stella's companion. In 1701, on Swift's advice, the two ladies moved to Ireland to live. In this country Stella could get ten per cent. on her £1,000 fortune; she would be near her County Wicklow farm, and provisions were cheap on this side of St. George's Channel. The vicarage of Laracor was always available for them when Swift was away from his parish, and in the intervals they could live in a cottage at Trim or as guests with Archdeacon Raymond. Dingley might not be a stimulating companion. Her favourite topics were weddings and funerals and christenings. When a burglar broke in, to be shot dead by Stella, Dingley would certainly put her head under the blankets and scream. But, in spite of Swift's jests, she was reliable and even useful in her muddled way. Any household accounts which survive are in her handwriting. She would see to the creature comforts of the ménage.

Only one example of her literary style survives, apart from her book-keeping. This is a note to her brother, Bob, acknowledging the receipt of a bill for £108. It is just the kind of epistle we should expect of her, written in the hand of an unaccustomed scribe, who does as little correspondence as possible. Typically, it ends with the desperate excuse of one who can think of nothing else to say—"In hast from your Thankfull Sert. and affectionate Sister, Re. Dingley."

Spelling

Perhaps in one thing she could outdo Stella—in spelling! It is amusing to see that, in a receipt to Mr. Dingley, on the back of Rebecca's letter, Stella repeats her favourite and often corrected error, "bussiness!" Swift was never able to teach her to spell correctly. "Pray, Stella," he writes in the journal, "what do you mean by Villian and Dainger, and you, Madam Dingley, what is Christianing?" Apparently Rebecca is at her favourite topic again!

Wherever Swift went we find the quaint pair. Everybody knows that Swift never saw Stella without having Dingley present as well. In Quilca, that ramshackle farm where Sheridan lived, we meet the inseparables once more. Quilca was a happy-go-lucky house, with "Stools, Tables, Chairs and Bedsteds broke"; a household where the servants

> Eat like a Turk,
> Sleep like a Dormouse,
> Be last at work,
> At Victuals foremost.

Dingley did not appreciate it at all. We can sympathise when we read some of the Dean's pen pictures of the place.

> Grumbling, poor complaining Dingley
> Is left to care and trouble singly.

Its disorder fussed her chaotic brain, and she longed for the security of an ordered town house with shops round the corner. She "would rather live in a Dublin Cellar than in a Country Palace."

If we had not been told so specifically, we should still have known for certain that Mistress Dingley must have had a fat pet dog on which she doted. It was inevitable—and, of course, she had. It was called Tiger. Perhaps all her dogs for many generations kept the name of a first beloved pet. In 1741, Faulkner's Dublin Journal advertises an offer of "A Crown Reward and no Questions asked" to a finder who will return to "the Rev. Dr. Swift, Dean of St. Patrick's, or to the printer hereof," a "little Bitch of a Light Fox Colour with a round Head and long Ears," wearing a collar with the couplet.

> Pray, steal me not, I'm Mrs. Dingley's
> Whose Heart in this Four-footed Thing > lies.

The Journal

Mistress Dingley is, of course, immortalised in the pages of the Journal. And, incidentally, there is a trace of injustice in the popular title, the "Journal to Stella." It was really a journal to Stella and to Dingley. They are both in Swift's mind. The nickname, "MD," does not just stand for Stella alone. It means, perhaps, "My Dears." At any rate, it is plural. If M is Stella, then D is certainly Rebecca. Both are in his mind when he writes. No honest reader of the Journal can miss seeing his affection for the shadowy member of the team—Dingley, for whom he prays so often that she has her health and no spleen, for whom he buys hinged spectacles at Ludgate, and from whom he asks prayers when he is suffering from his terrible giddy fits.

His care for her is rather touching. In later life he even persuades her that she is entitled to an annual payment from a mythical trust fund, and demands formal receipts to camouflage the fact that he is really paying her fifty guineas a year out of his own pocket. By will he bequeaths to her an annuity of twenty pounds from his hospital funds. But Swift survived her, as he survived all his generation. In 1743, two years before his own death, Dingley had died, aged seventy-seven years.

Let us hope that his charming wish for the old age of the dear fussy old lady came true.

> And when she's in another scene,
> Stella long dead, but first the Dean,
> May fortune and her coffee get her
> Companions that will please her better:
> Whole afternoons will sit beside her,
> Nor for neglects or blunders chide her;
> A goodly set as can be found
> Of hearty gossips prating round;
> Fresh from a wedding or a christ'ning
> To teach her ears the art of list'ning,
> And please her more to hear them tattle
> Than the Dean storm, or Stella rattle.
> Late be her death, one gentle nod,
> When Hermes, waiting with his rod,
> Shall to Elysian fields invite her,
> Where there will be no cares to fright her.

MEMORY OF BROTHER MICHAEL

By Patrick Kavanagh

IT would never be morning, always evening,
Golden sunset, golden age—
When Shakespeare, Marlowe and Jonson were writing
The future of England page by page
A nettle-wild grave was Ireland's stage.

It would never be spring, always autumn
After a harvest always lost—
When Drake was winning seas for England
We sailed in puddles of the past
Pursuing the ghost of Brendan's mast.

The seeds among the dust were less than dust,
Dust we sought, decay,
The young sprout rising smothered in it
Cursed for being in the way—
And the same is true to-day.

Culture is always something that was,
Something pedants can measure:
Skull of bard, thigh of chief,
Depth of dried-up river.
Shall we be thus forever?
Shall we be thus forever?

MICHAEL O'CLERY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES

SIR,—Dr. O'Daly, an excellent phonetician, in An Cónggar, prints the Cork nominative of the Irish for "Michael" as Mihál. The vocative which is the same as the genitive, he prints as Vihíl. Dr. Sheehan, another keen observer, agrees with him in printing short i in the first syllable of the Waterford form of the genitive. Most Cork and Kerry speakers would accept Dr. O'Daly's usage as faithfully representing their dialect. (The i is also short in Ulster.) Your reviewer, accepting the doctrine of a recent phonetician, reproves the editor of the O'Clery miscellany for following the commonly accepted doctrine that the i of the first syllable is short in the genitive in Munster Irish. Should your reviewer not have warned the general reader that he and his authority represent a new school of thought in the matter?

When your reviewer objects to the use of "bastard" forms such as "Michael O Cléirigh" in English, the general reader, remembering current Thomas Aquinas, Michael Angelo and Richard Wagner, will be able to make up his own mind without aid from experts.—Yours, etc.,

GERARD MURPHY.

Mediæval Ireland

Annála Connacht: The Annals of Connacht (A.D. 1224—1544). Edited by A. Martin Freeman. The Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies.

ON reading the scholarly introduction to the present volume one is impressed by the amount of laborious research which has been expended on the text, not only in tracing the succession of scribes and their errors of orthography and of fact, but also in guiding the reader through the mazes of mediæval chronology. There is a wealth of topographical detail throughout the book, but, although some of the places mentioned in the text are identified in the notes, it seems a pity that more of the scholarship lavished on obscurities less interesting to the general reader had not been expended on completing this part of the work.

On account of the scanty nature of the entries for any one year and the prominence given by the scribes to raid and counter-raid, family vendettas and feudal treacheries in these little wars of Gael and Gall, there is a general impression of chronic turbulence during those unhappy years, which may possibly be exaggerated. What a different direction our history might have taken if, before the 12th century, some native ruling family had established an undisputed authority and enabled the country to meet its enemies with a united front! As late as 1537 this national sovereignty was almost attained by the O'Donnells of Donegal.

But in the midst of all this turmoil we know that monasteries kept the lamp of learning alight and scholars spent long lives in quiet sanctuaries; physicians, great according to the standard of their time, died "with unction and penance," and many a war-like chieftain ended his life in his bed "having overcome the world and the devil." One of the latter was Feidhlim O Conchobar, King of Connacht, who died in 1368—"a hundred times did weapons pierce his body, but death came to him on his pillow."

Much could be written on the type and character of the frequent and widespread epidemics which swept over our land in common with other lands at that time. Apart from the ubiquitous smallpox, year after year "the plague" took its toll. This, it is probable, was most often either typhus or bubonic plague. Leprosy was common, and it seems to have been dealt with by segregation, as is indicated by the number of significant place-names throughout the country, such as Leopardstown (Leperstown), in Co. Dublin; Slieve Lougher (Mount of Lepers), near Castleisland, Co. Kerry; Hospital, in Co. Limerick; Spiddal, in Co. Galway, and numerous Spitals and Spittles elsewhere.

This book is printed both in Irish and in English, and although the Irish version is the concern mainly of scholars there is a wealth of most interesting material for others in the English translation and in the voluminous notes.

Pioneer America

The Oregon Trail. By Francis Parkman. Oxford University Press. 8/6 net.

THIS is one of the great travel books in the literature of the English-speaking peoples, and its re-issue to-day, almost a century after the events it records, is sure evidence of its continued hold on public imagination. It is almost impossible to realise the transformation which has made those vast prairies, sparsely inhabited by belligerent Indian tribes and herds of wandering buffalo, into some of the more important States of the present American Union. Where Parkman and his companions camped in armed state, fearful of wild animal as of savage brave, to-day there are great cities, vast industrial plants, and a seemingly teeming reservoir of modern civilised humanity.

Nowhere on the surface of the globe was the changing tempo of civilisation so immediate and so obvious. The discovery of gold in California, the coming of the railway and the vaulting ambition characteristic of young America quickly tamed the savage wilderness. In Parkman's day the Indians were still strongly and independently organised, and still pursued their warlike way of life with periodical fury, often against the white man, more often against each other.

Parkman was a forerunner of the scientific anthropologist. He travelled not merely to explore new country, but to study new racial types. He is at his best as he describes the characteristics of French trapper and Canadian half-breed; of Mormon immigrant or Indian squaw. His accounts of "buffalo" hunting make us understand why that preposterous animal is to-day in danger of extermination, and his sympathy with the hunted antelope we cannot but share. For a time he lived as a guest in an Indian community, and he details with care the varying habits of different tribes and of the social classes within the tribes.

A volume like this makes us grasp in a very real way the nearness of much that was frontier America to the savage state, and should assist us in the understanding of certain characteristic American attitudes of mind. Professor Henry Steel Commager, who needs no introduction in this country, has prefaced this edition with a sufficient introduction for all to understand the historical background, but it is a work good enough to require no recommendation.

Periodicals

The Dublin Magazine (October-December) is valuable for a full reprint of Mr. Roibeard O Farachain's verse play, "Lost Light." Articles by Arland Ussher (on Dostoievsky), Lorna Reynolds and Roy McFadden are included, as well as verse, the usual reviews, and an excellent short story by M. J. McManus.

The Bell (October) contains an editorial on Ireland's relations with the British Commonwealth, recollections of Irish jails by an anonymous ex-convict, and an article on "Swing in Ballyjamesduff," by V. H. S. Mercier, among other features.

The Irish Rosary (Sept.-Oct.) is notable for one of the most intelligent articles that have appeared on the revival of Irish. James Devane actually supports the revival; but his advocacy is so free from the usual "bunkum" — which, indeed, he firmly repudiates—that even a convinced opponent of the movement would find him worth an argument, and, perhaps, even convincing. Denis Ireland's "Leaves from a London Sketch-Book (1941)" is among the other interesting contributions.

Dostoievsky is the subject also of one of the articles in Studies (September). Professor Michael Tierney discusses the origin of Greek Tragedy, stressing the importance of Aristotle's evidence. Dr. B. G. MacCarthy writes on female fiction-writers. Book reviews, as well as many other articles, are included.

"Humour in Modern English Literature" is the subject of one of the most interesting features in the Irish Ecclesiastical Record (October). The Church of England and the Douay-Rheims Bible are among the other matters considered.

BERNARD FALK
THE BERKELEYS OF BERKELEY SQUARE
In his new book Bernard Falk has a subject very much after his own heart, for never was there an historic English family more prone to folly or fantastic behaviour than the one which Berkeley Square owes its origin and name. But rich as the book is in piquant revelations, it is at the same time a distinct contribution to history. 18/-

"The Wind in the Sky" is a story of a Suffolk of the past. It should carry the reader's mind away from the war and all present distresses to the countryside of a great landscape painter of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. 9/6

She Never Thinks about RHEUMATISM

The best way to deal with rheumatism is to prevent it developing at all. The next best thing is to tackle it when you feel the first twinges. Telling how she has avoided rheumatism 76-years-old Mrs. Amsden writes:—

"I take a small dose of Kruschen in hot water every morning. This is a certain method (for me) of avoiding rheumatic pains and constipation. Before I started taking Kruschen I had frequent attacks of lumbago and sciatica. Now I don't think about rheumatism at all, can walk miles, and never have headaches. I am close on seventy-six years old, but no one believes it, as I look so healthy. I believe it is due to Kruschen, which has been my friend for thirteen years."—(Mrs.) E. B. Amsden.

Why is it that lumbago, backache, rheumatism and indigestion all yield so swiftly to Kruschen Salts? The secret is an open one. It is revealed in the analysis on the bottle—for physicians and everyone else to see. Six vital mineral salts, each with a penetrating action of its own. Stomach, liver, kidneys and digestive tract are all benefited and toned up to a top-notch condition of efficiency. When your whole system starts working like a perfect machine, you will shed your woes like a worn-out garment.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Chemists, price 1/9 per bottle.

PRESTIDIGITATION?

No, this is not a new medical term; it is only a suggested name for a type of mental attitude to which some business men are prone.

Such as, for instance, the idea sometimes harboured that successful advertising is a kind of conjuring trick, by the aid of which one can produce rabbits out of empty hats.

Of course, it is nothing of the kind. The definition of genius as "an infinite capacity for taking pains" describes accurately one of the essential qualifications for a successful advertising man. In fact, success in advertising is, to put it plainly, one per cent. inspiration and ninety-nine per cent. perspiration.

That we have been more successful than most in this art of persuading people to buy things is, we feel, largely due to the fact that we do take infinite pains. And, of course, we also provide the essential one per cent. inspiration.

"TO THE KNIFE"

Although bad weather is holding up military operations on most of the fronts, there is no doubt that the real crisis of the war is at hand. Almost everywhere Allied troops either have reached the frontiers of Greater Germany or are virtually in sight of them. Festung Deutschland is being assailed from every side, and, although it is too soon to speak with any degree of certainty, it seems to be more than likely that another winter campaign must be faced. For the moment, public interest is centred in the fight for Aachen, otherwise known as Aix-la-Chapelle. Aachen is the first German city of any size on the far side of the Reich's western frontier. It is a city rich in historical memories. Even in mediaeval times it had a population of about 100,000, and to-day—or more properly, one might say yesterday — it sheltered 150,000 souls. Charlemagne may have been born there; experts differ on the point. He certainly was buried there, and the city's famous cathedral enshrines his remains. For more than seven hundred years, between the ninth and the sixteenth centuries, the German Emperors and Empresses were crowned in Aachen. For this reason, alone, the city has a symbolic significance for the German people. Some days ago it was announced that the Allied forces had surrounded Aachen. An ultimatum was sent to its military commander, demanding immediate surrender; but that ultimatum was rejected, and, since then, the city has been bombarded fiercely both by artillery and from the air. A large proportion of its people has been evacuated; but there is a strong military garrison which evidently has been ordered to hold out to the last man. Yesterday an Allied report declared that Aachen had become little more than "a grimy derelict of a city." American armour has penetrated into the suburbs, and bitter fighting is in progress in the streets. From the strategic point of view, Aachen has no great importance, apart from the fact that it is—or was—a railway centre of some importance. It is about forty miles from Cologne, and during the last war it was used as a kind of springboard for the German Army in its assault upon Liège and the rest of Belgium. The fact that the Germans are defending this city with such determination indicates that their leaders' recent speeches were meant to be taken seriously. The Wehrmacht evidently has been instructed to contest every inch of German soil. The decision to defend Aachen even after the city had been virtually surrounded by Allied forces cannot have been taken lightly. Yesterday, the Germans launched a number of strong counter-attacks in the north-east in an effort, if not to save the city, at least to delay its reduction. As we write, the result of this attack has not been made known; but German soldiers and civilians are fighting desperately in Aachen's ruins.

In their recent speeches, the German leaders have been remarkably frank. Without exception, those who have spoken have made it clear that they realise their country's danger. They do not seek to disguise the fact that in the west, as in the east, they are faced with adversaries who are vastly superior in respect of material as well as of men. They declare that the Anglo-American-Russian Allies are doing their utmost to obtain a military decision before the onset of winter, and that they are equally firm in their resolve to prevent them. Some time ago, shortly after the attempt on Herr Hitler's life, Dr. Goebbels was entrusted with the task of bringing about "total mobilisation" in Germany. Herr Himmler also was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Home Army; and it is obvious that neither has been wasting his time. According to the latest reports, all the demands of the Wehrmacht for new divisions have been satisfied. Furthermore, civilians of both sexes, and of all ages, have been mobilised for the important work of trench-digging and the buildings of fortifications. Comparisons are being made with the days of the Befreiungs Kriege, or Wars of Liberation against Napoleon. A levée en masse is in contemplation, if, indeed, it already has not been ordained. The fighting spirit of the German people, as a whole, ought not to be underestimated. It no longer is a question of party politics. "Right or wrong, my country," is the slogan that is being dinned into German ears to-day. In East Prussia, as in the west, Germany's huge population is being mobilised against its final trial. So far, there has been no sign of a break in national moral; but the testing-time has yet to come.

An Attack on Dublin

Irresponsible action has offered a serious threat to the comfort of Dublin City. Yesterday a number—as it appears, a minority—of the employés of the Dublin Gas Company struck work; by the unwritten law of trade union politics the majority, although belonging to another union and disposed to conciliation, perforce followed the example; and the manufacture of gas ceased at 2 p.m. yesterday. The net result is that, unless the men return to work, the existing supply of gas will be exhausted shortly after noon to-day, and the company announces that, if the plant once is allowed to cool, it may not be possible to resume supply for a matter of weeks. We have no doubt about the verdict of the people of Dublin—particularly the poor—upon this attack against their peace. The restriction of gas hours has created constant and widespread discomfort during the past few years; the total disappearance of gas will cause the severest hardship. We lack the facts which would enable us to express a judgment on the rights or wrongs of the strikers' demands; but, however strong their case may be, it cannot be strong enough to justify behaviour of this kind. Apart from the industries and public institutions—including hospitals—which will be crippled overnight, the great bulk of the people of Dublin will be reduced almost to the edge of starvation. The well-to-do generally can find alternative, even if inconvenient, means of cooking; the poor, in to-day's circumstances of "emergency," are dependent on the scanty hours of gas supply. This unjustified and grossly anti-social strike will strengthen the growing desire of thoughtful people—however favourable they may be to the labour movement—for legislation that will prevent the stoppage of public utility services. The strike, as directed against an employer, is not necessarily an unfair weapon. It is barbaric and antiquated where a whole community is the victim.

YOU Irish have a great knack of getting into the news. I opened the London Times the other day and the first I see is

NEW EGYPTIAN CABINET
MAHER PASHA TAKES OVER

Extraordinary crowd, the Mahers. I know (and devoutly accept) that Thurles is full of them, that many of that ilk are to be found in Limerick, Kerry, West Cork and Clare. But Cairo! Taking over in Cairo. I can see . . . himself . . . inside in the private study . . . smirking discreetly as he tries to tie on a fake fez, while not far-distant is the bottle of Paddy. The while there is probably quiet celebration in some place like Newcastlewest or Mooncoin. And more bottles of Paddy. The old man in the chimney corner wears an expression of honest pride. A welcome awaits every caller. "Ah, yes, they all done well. Pat is a higher executive officer above in Dublin, Tom is in the Guards . . (here the old fingers are checked in a gesture of enumeration) . . . Joe married a national teacher and has four hackneys. Tim is an usher in Leinster House and Mick . . . Mick is doin' very well for himself beyond in Egypt. Has a big job in the Government there. There's talk of him sendin' out for Biddy next spring. . . ."

Another news item obliquely drew my attention once again to what I consider one of the most interesting of your primitive folk norms: I refer to the fashion of patronymic enclesis, like Tom Hegarty (Pat), Tim Sullivan (Mick) and soforth. But the news item dealing with Professor Savory (Con) had a more particular interest. Professor Savory (Con) does not read the "Irish Times"! Certain remarks made by him in the British Dáil the other day shows that he is quite unaware that it was proved recently in this newspaper (right up to the hilt) that the so-called Treaty does not exist and never existed—that a material signature was faked and that the alleged instrument is null and void for fraud, incompleteness, and maltrover. A Mr. Emrys-Evans, described as "Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Dominions" (doesn't say whose dominions) made the same bloomer. "He fully sympathised," the report says, "with Northern Ireland in requiring to reaffirm and underline the agreement, which so closely concerned them. The agreements were the basis on which Northern Ireland existed as a separate entity. The Treaty of 1921 provided for the separation of Northern Ireland under a separate Parliament and Government."

So much the worse for "Northern Ireland." The Treaty is invalid and Northern Ireland does not exist. The whole thing is a collossal illegality. I'm surprised at Mr. Emrys-Evans. A Parliamentary Under-Secretary should make sure of his facts. Moreover, I got no notice of this debate, nor at any time was my advice sought by either party. What name have we for this sort of thing? Downright bad manners, I fear. You won't find Maher in Cairo at carry-on like that.

I'm rather glad about that document that went the rounds at Hans Place over twenty years ago. No longer can it be said that anybody sold the country by private Treaty!

ISLAND AND COAST SOCIETY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—For nigh on 40 years the Irish Times has been kind enough to allow our late Chairman, Canon Kingsmill Moore, D.D., to appeal on behalf of the above charity.

The Society is an old one, dating back to 1833, but, so long as there are children to be educated and clothed, so long will our help be needed.

We help to support the small schools, not eligible to come under the National Board; we help children from outlying districts to attend the larger central schools; and, last but not least, we help to clothe them. It is in connection with this last that we now specially appeal for aid. In nearly all these rain-soaked and wind-swept districts around the coasts the children have many miles to go to school. The parents are poor, living mostly on what they can make out of their small farms or fishing boats. Even if they could afford the high price of clothing, their own village shops are now almost empty, and transport to the nearest large town impossible. It is not surprising, therefore, to hear that many of the children are literally house-bound during the winter months for want of clothing. We heard of a case lately where the children were not only house-bound, but bed-bound, owing to insufficient clothing.

We, therefore, earnestly beg for help—clothes, new or old (but not too old), to fit 7-16 years, or adult clothing suitable for "making-down." Parcels, with the sender's name and address enclosed, should be sent to the Secretary, 8 Dawson street, Dublin, not later than November 25th, and should, if possible, be done up in canvas or box, not paper. Contributions of money, towards both general and clothing expenses, will also be most gratefully received.—Yours, etc.,

R. H. RYLAND, Chairman.
G. O. SIMMS.

POINTS FROM LETTERS

CIVIL SERVICE BONUSES.—It may interest your readers to learn that a civil servant who retired on pension in 1934 has received no bonus whatever in the intervening ten years. This is in marked contrast to the treatment meted out to ex-British civil servants resident in this country.—"FAIRPLAY."

With regard to the apparently unjust treatement of civil servants, the sanctity of agreements is an obvious desideratum, but an agreement benefiting a limited class of persons cannot come before the welfare of the community as a whole. Besides, if civil servants were granted bonuses in accordance with the agreement, the rest of the community would be up in arms decrying the Government's favouritism of its own employees. Any honest thinker must admit the wisdom of the Standstill Order. The scarcity of goods cannot be circumvented; and is it not better that the hardship should, as far as practicable, be shared by all than shifted on to the backs of those with the lowest bargaining power? — A. P.-W., Trinity College, Dublin.

DUBLIN ACCOUNTANTS

The sixteenth annual general meeting of the Dublin Society of Chartered Accountants, held last Wednesday, October 11th, at Jury's Hotel, Dublin, was presided over by Mr. P. Butler, F.C.A., Chairman of the Society. The following were elected members of the Committee for the year 1944-45:—M. M. Connor, A.C.A.; H. W. Robinson, A.C.A., and H. H. Forsyth, A.C.A. Messrs. R. Stanley Stokes, F.C.A., and E. J. Shott, F.C.A., were re-elected auditors of the Society for the ensuing year.

ADVERTISING DANCE

The Advertising-Press Club's first annual dance, held in the Metropole Ballroom, Dublin, last night, was a big success, being attended by 500 guests. The committee members were:—Miss M. O'Connor, Miss P. Manning, Mr. D. B. O'Kennedy (chairman), Miss P. Garvey, Miss G. McManus, Mr. D. J. Garvey (hon. secretary), and Messrs. P. Dunfoy, J. McCann, J. C. McConnell (vice-chairman), J. H. Webb and P. J. Conlon (hon. treasurer).

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

THE system of lay magistrates in England works well, and the great majority of the people are well satisfied with it. To support this statement one has only to turn to the figures for 1938, the last year for which they are available. Of 831,000 people charged with criminal offences, only eleven in a thousand elected to be tried by a jury. This shows a certain confidence in leaving things in the hands of the magistrates. Of the 787,000 found guilty, only one in eight hundred appealed against the magistrates' decision, and of these, only one in five was successful. There are twenty-seven stipendiary magistrates in London. For the last sixty years any populous place outside London can apply to the Home Office to have a stipendiary appointed, but only eighteen have asked for stipendiaries. Women were first appointed to the Bench in 1919, and have been a great success. Mr. Morrison has recently directed that the designation "police courts" should never be used in future, and these departments of the law are now to be known universally as "magistrates' courts."

"Developers Banned"

One of the finest, if not the finest, stretches of coast in England and Wales is to be preserved in its present character with public access assured for all time—except on cultivated land. The area covered is 24 miles of North Cornwall from the National Trust Land at Tintagel Castle to the Devon border, and several miles of the North Devon coastline to Hartland, and, perhaps, beyond. Youth hostels, and hostels for the not too young, are to be established.

Shortage of Turkeys

The general opinion here is that home-bred turkeys will be in shorter supply than last year. It does not follow, however, that the Ministry of Food can offer a higher price to the Irish producer. At the Smithfield offices of the Association of Wholesale Distributors of Imported Poultry and Rabbits, which handles all the Eire traffic, the staff are busy on preliminary work concerning the great end of November and early December exodus. Prices at the great Attleborough (Norfolk) turkey sale this week fell from 4s. to 3s. a lb. on news that there is to be a ban on the sale of stock turkeys in the months of December and January. This means that Christmas turkeys, unless killed at the end of November and kept, will be sold only for table, for which prices are controlled.

Transmuted Wood

Chemists of the Du Pont Co. claim to have solved the problem of metamorphosis of wood, and exhibited recently several articles of transmuted wood. Their treatment enables industry to create woods harder than the ebony, which nature takes a century to grow. Wood of all types can be converted in a few days into wood of any desired hardness, and any desired colour can be imparted throughout by mixing a dye at the same time. As there are in the United States alone 950 types of wood useless because of their softness, compared with 50 hardwoods, the new process should have immense possibilities.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE CONFERENCE

To-day the St. John Ambulance Brigade will hold their District Conference at the Iveagh Play Centre, Dublin. The first of its kind to be held in Eire, the Conference will be attended by about 300 delegates, representing ambulance and nursing divisions in Dublin City, Dublin County Cork, Limerick, Bray, Sligo and Mullingar.

At the afternoon session, District Superintendent Mrs. H. McConnell, of the Cork City Nursing Division, will read a paper on "The Spirit of the Brigade." At the evening session District Officer Dr. J. F. Eustace, M.B., B.Ch., D.P.H., will read a paper entitled "Training and Discipline."

To-morrow a combined church parade will be held, when members of the Brigade will parade in Winetavern street at 3 p.m. before proceeding to the Franciscan Church, Merchant's Quay, and to Christ Church Cathedral. The Services begin at 3.30 p.m.

HARVEST THANKSGIVING

Harvest Thanksgiving Services will be held to-morrow in the following Dublin Churches:—

Holy Trinity, Rathmines.—The Bishop of Killaloe will preach at 10 and 11.15 a.m., and the Bishop of Ossory at 7.15 p.m. The Rector, Canon Tobias, will give the address at the Children's Gift Service at 3.30 p.m.

Christ Church, Leeson Park.—The preacher at 11 a.m. and 7.15 p.m. will be the Bishop of Clogher. There will be a Children's Festival Service at 3.30 p.m., with an address by the Rector.

St. George's.—The Rev. R. J. Coates will preach at 11.45 a.m., and the Rev. E. W. Greening at 7.15 p.m.

The Free Church.—The preacher at 10.15 a.m. will be the Rev. R. J. Coates, and at 7.15 p.m. the Rev. A. T. McNutt. The Rev. T. P. S. Wood will preach at the Children's Gift Service at 3.30 p.m. On Monday at 8 p.m. the preacher will be the Rev. A. W. Camier.

ARMY PERSONNEL

Promotion.—Captain (Acting Commandant) to be Commandant—C. S. Doyle.

Retirements.—The following, holding temporary rank in Oglaigh na h-Eireann, retire as from October 12th—Acting Capt. M Maloney, Lieut. Sean Kelleher, Lieut. M. T. Cregg, Acting Lieut. P. J. Flanigan.

Resignations.—The resignations by the following of their commissions in the Reserve of Officers have been accepted by the President, with effect as from September 26th—Acting Capt. T. M. MacDunphy, Lieuts. J. J. Jones, T. M. E. Ryan, D. D. Spicer, P. P. Nelson and P. Sheahan; Acting Lieuts. M. Ryan, P. Reidy, D. K. O'Donovan and P. O. Ferguson; Second Lieuts. A. Learhinan, A. Molloy and T. Cooney.

Temporary Second Lieut. J. E. Murphy has been appointed to commissioned rank as Second Lieut. in Oglaigh na h-Eireann.

IRISH WILLS

Miss Alison Janet Bogue, Kenilworth square, Dublin, £8,925 (gross in Eire); Mrs. Nora Lawton, widow, Riversdale, Thurles, £8,654 (gross in Eire); Miss Mary E. Bryron, Drumkeerin, Co. Leitrim, £1,562 (gross in Eire); Miss Ellen Lowe, Lower Fitzwilliam street, Dublin, £1,970 (gross in Eire); Osborne Edward Barber, 66 Garville avenue, Rathgar, £7,694 (Britain); Robert Rogers Stewart, F.I.C.S., 31 St. Lawrence road, Clontarf, Dublin, barrister-at-law, and formerly general manager of the Cavan-Leitrim Railway Co., £25,527 (Britain); Mrs. Anna Maria Fitzmaurice, Easton Lodge, Monkstown, Co. Dublin, widow of Arthur Fitzmaurice, late of Johnstown, Carlow, £4,171 (Britain); James Combe, 27 Osborne Park, Belfast, £13,674 (Britain).

WEDDING

Falkiner—Upington.—The marriage took place at Ballykeane Church, Portarlington, on October 11th, of Mr. Richard Baldwin Falkiner, Castle Cuffe, Clonaslee, elder son of Mrs. Falkiner and the late Eyre Coote Falkiner, and Miss Isabel Margaret Upington, daughter of Thomas and Mrs. Upington, Buttevant, Co. Cork. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. McKinley, B.A., Rector of Portarlington, assisted by the Rev. W. E. Kenny, B.D., Rector of Clonaslee. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. William Upington. Mrs. Digby Odlum, sister of the bride, acted as matron-of-honour, and Mr. Thomas Rothwell, Bank of Ireland, Mountmellick, acted as best man.

Mrs. A. H. Connell, M.F.H., is carrying on the Mastership of the North Kildare Harriers for the coming season.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Business and Art

ONE does not often associate successful business men with a genuine interest in art. When men make money they often amuse themselves by buying pictures, not because they have any understanding of the arts, but merely because they think it is the thing to do. I refer to the type of man who will pay a large sum for a picture so long as it "tones" with the hearth-rug in his drawingroom, or "goes" with the pattern on his wallpaper. This type, of course, is useful to the artist, who, in most cases, is a poor man, anxious to sell his work; but I know at least one Irish painter, extremely hard up, who has refused to sell a picture to such an individual.

A Tyrrell Story

The late John Healy used to tell an amusing story about the great Robert Yelverton Tyrrell, of Trinity, who rivalled Mahaffy as a "character," and was considered by many to be an even greater classical scholar.

When the late Richard Croker, the legendary "Boss" of Tammany Hall, and the man whose horse, Orby, enriched a large proportion of the inhabitants of this island when he won the Derby in 1907, came to Ireland and settled down at Glencairn, near Sandyford, Oliver Gogarty brought Tyrrell out to give his opinion on the "Boss's" collection of pictures, for which he had paid some fantastic sum.

The Hanging Question

The "Boss" was a worthy person; but his taste in pictures was not one of his most notable characteristics. Tyrrell was led round the rooms, more or less in silence; and when it was all over the "Boss" asked:

"Well, Perfessor (he always insisted on the "per"), what do you think of them pictures?"

Tyrrell's immediate response is not on record, but when he got back to the University Club he discussed the matter with some of his friends.

"What did you think of them?" asked one of the company.

"Well, my dear fellow, I was not interested so much in the quality of Mr. Croker's admirable paintings as in his rather peculiar use of the demonstrative pronoun."

Exceptions to the Rule

This, by way of introduction. I am happy to say that there are some notable exceptions, even in this country, to the general rule which I have enunciated in my first paragraph. We have in Dublin some successful men of affairs who really have a keen interest in art in general and a sincere love of painting in particular.

One of them is my friend Mr. Joseph Brennan, of the insurance world, who, I regret to say, must be described now as an ex-Senator. While I condole with him, his defeat at the recent election placed him in excellent company. I should imagine that it is regarded as an honour now to be among the Senatorial "also rans."

Mr. Brennan is one of those primarily responsible for the organisation of the exhibition of paintings which is being held in conjunction with the forthcoming Oireachtas. This body must not be confused with the National Legislature. It is an all-Gaelic institution, which meets in Dublin every year.

An Enthusiast

I understand that the art exhibition this year will be particularly good. It will contain about 150 pictures, all by Irish artists, and this number represents only a fraction of the pictures that have been submitted. The Selection Committee included men of such standing as Jack Yeats, Leo Whelan, James Slater, Albert Power, and the President of the Royal Hibernian Academy, Dermod O'Brien.

Mr. Brennan is an enthusiast. He is most anxious to ensure that Dublin shall have an exhibition every autumn as well as every spring. He tells me that the autumn exhibition in Brighton rivals the Royal Academy's Annual Show in popularity, and feels that a great service would be done to art in this country if the idea of an autumn show should be made permanent.

He has been highly successful in his business career, and has spent a great deal of money in the encouragement of our native artists. He has possibly the best private collection of paintings in this country, and is proud of the fact that his treasures include more than two hundred works—sculptures as well as paintings—by contemporary Irish men and women.

To Be or Not To Be?

While in Mr. Brennan's company I met another interesting personality, who does not yet know whether he is an ex-Senator or not. He is Mr. Thomas Condon, who, it will be remembered, was disqualified after having been elected to the Senate on the ground that he is a member of the Irish Tourist Board.

Mr. Condon has had an outstanding career in his native Co. Meath. He is an ex-Chairman of the Meath County Council, and has been a member of all the bodies associated with the Council—bodies in charge of libraries, public health, vocational education, agriculture and the like.

Man of Letters

For many years he was Chairman of the General Council of the County Council, has been twice President of the Irish Tourist Association, and is a member of the Governing Body of University College, Dublin. In his spare time, as it were, he is a director of the Irish Public Bodies' Mutual Insurance.

What interested me chiefly about Mr. Condon, however, was not his record, either as a Senator or as a public man in Co. Meath; it was his taste for literature. I discovered that he knew far more about Johnston's "Rasselas" than I did, although I had prided myself on being one of the few people of my generation who had had the patience to plough through this famous, but decidedly tortuous, composition. Mr. Condon also is an authority on the pompous old Doctor's "Lives of the Poets." So far as knowledge of eighteenth-century literature is concerned, you're a better man than I am, Mr. Condon.

Barry Fitzgerald

Barry Fitzgerald is appearing large in the news these days. I have not yet seen the picture in which he is playing at the Capitol (the only picture, believe it or not, that I have seen during the last three years is "The Song of Bernadette," for which I got a free ticket); but my cinema-going friends all tell me that Barry is brilliant as a parish priest. His success in this rôle is all the more remarkable, inasmuch as he is a Protestant.

Barry Fitzgerald, who made his name as an actor in Dublin when he played in the O'Casey productions at the Abbey, is not Barry Fitzgerald at all. His real name is Will Shields, brother of Arthur Shields (the Boss), who also made a name for himself at the Abbey, and also went to America.

In London

Will was a civil servant, but retired under the famous Article 12, and devoted his whole time to acting. He left the Abbey some years ago, and accepted a small part in one of C. B. Cochran's revues at the London Pavilion, earning what seemed then to be the almost fabulous salary of £30 a week! I suppose he is getting at least ten times that amount in filmland.

I met him in London during the run of the show at the Pavilion, and he begged me not to go to see it. Needless to say, for that very reason, I did. It was a pretty grim performance altogether. Barry did a kind of "turn" as a comic schoolmaster; but the awful part of it was that at the end of the act he appeared with a number of others in boiled shirts, swallow-tail coats and pink carnations in a male chorus, in which all the boys, including a highly self-conscious Barry, linked arms and pirouetted about the stage. When I met him outside the stage door afterwards he would hardly talk to me.

A Golfing Contretemps

In those days—it was during one of the Imperial Conferences in London—he and I used to play an occasional game of golf over the public links at Richmond. One day we found that we had to wait for about three-quarters of an hour before we could get off the first tee, and while we were waiting Barry spent his time fiddling about with an old golf ball and a penknife.

"They tell me," he said, reflectively, "that these balls have a core of compressed liquid rubber"—and as he spoke he kept on cutting the ball, the thin elastic strands of which were performing all kinds of eccentric acrobatics.

"So they tell me," he went on; and at that moment his knife penetrated into the centre of the ball, causing the liquid rubber to squirt violently into Barry's face, catching him right between the two eyes.

"And it seems," he went on, without batting a lid, "that they were right."

Anybody who has tried this experiment will realise that Barry Fitzgerald must be a really great man.

DAWROS MAY CONTINUE WINNING WAY

THE programme for this afternoon's meeting at Leopardstown gives every promise of some very entertaining racing. The runners for the Holywood Handicap will include Dawros, who a week ago ran a dead-heat with Drybob in the Irish Cambridgeshire, and Mrs. George Robinson's consistent performer should be ideally suited by the course and distance. Chief danger may come from Carlist and Goldsmith.

It seems unlikely that Prince Regent will be asked to carry his hunting burden of 13-7 in the Laragh 'Chase, particularly as his owner, Mr. J. V. Rank, can be represented by another very useful performer in Red Branch. Preference here, however, is for Summer Star, who appears well treated on her best form.

Tote Double on Fourth and Sixth Races.

Prince Regent has an alternative engagement in the Kilbride Hurdle, in which his task would be a much easier one. Prince Toi was a comfortable winner of a similar race here a couple of months ago, and he may prove the chief danger to Mill Boy, who was only narrowly beaten at Dundalk. Selections:—

J. McDonnell an Unlucky Loser

A ROUSING set-to between P. Neville (C.B.S.) and J. McDonnell (North City), in the semi-final of the light-weight division, furnished a large proportion of the thrills in the Co. Dublin Championships at the Stadium last night. McDonnell was the better stylist, hitting cleanly and wasting little effort in wild punching, but he lost on points, probably just by the fact that he took a count of eight in the second round, when he caught a heavy punch while unbalanced.

C. Hardy (Avona) gave his clubmate, J. Power, national junior champion, a hard enough passage through the semi-final of the fly-weight division, but his fire and hard punching at long range were not matched by equal ability at in-fighting, and Power's advantage in this department, coupled with an extra touch of class throughout, gained him a points' verdict in a good bout.

Fly—First Series.—G. Kearns (Avona) bt. S. Cleary (Myra), on points. Semi-finals—J. Power (Avona) bt. C. Hardy (Avona) on points; Kearns bt. F. McGrane (North City), retired in 2nd round.

Bantam—Semi-finals.—T. Mordy (Terenure) bt. C. Fagan (Myra) on points; J. Gallagher (C.B.S.) bt. G. Carroll (Griffith and Terenure) on points.

Light—First Series.—Al. McDermott (An Dara) bt. L. Taaffe (Baldonnel), stopped in 1st round. Semi-finals—P. Neville (C.B.S.) bt. J. McDonnell (North City) on points; McDermott bt. R. Walsh (North City) on points.

Cruiser—First Series—Pte. T. Vickers (Portobello) bt. Pte. F. Curran (A.A.A.), retired in 2nd round.

Heavy—Semi-finals.—G. Colman (North City) k.o. P. Kinsella (Myra) in 1st round.

Final session to-night at 7.30.

DEATH RULES THE SETTLING

The sudden death of a backer after winning a large sum of money at Newmarket races this week has caused discussion in racing circles as to how the bets stand.

Brig.-General Kennedy, Chairman of Tattersall's Committee, the body which decides all disputes concerning bets, said yesterday that there is a definite ruling that, in the case of the death of either a backer or bookmaker before settling day, all bets are void.

"FREE ADMISSION" CHANGE

The free admission of owners to race meetings was considered and discussed at a joint meeting of the Turf Club and I.N.H.S. Committee, and it was decided that the words—"Owners who have declared runners at the Meeting and wife" as published in the "Calendar" of March 24th, 1944, should be altered to—"Owners who have an entry at the Meeting and wife."

Unsatisfactory T.B. Position

If ten or fifteen million pounds were provided by some philanthropist he was sure it could easily be used in an attempt to put the country's T.B. house in order.

This suggestion was made by Dr. R. E. Steen, F.R.C.P.I., Physician to the Meath Hospital and Co. Dublin Infirmary, in his inaugural address at yesterday's opening meeting of the clinical session at the hospital.

"Conditions at present," said Dr. Steen, "are appallingly depressing for medical men to face. The lack of accommodation for cases, and the fact that the whole T.B. services need to be reorganised here, must be obvious to all."

Referring to the Irish Red Cross Society's recent gift of £1,000 to the Meath Hospital towards the building of an outdoor shelter for their T.B. cases, Dr. Steen said that the present position was most unsatisfactory. Their beds were being kept filled with cases which were refused admission to any sanatorium, because the bed shortage was so acute that beds at sanatoria were available only for the very early cases, which had the best outlook.

BRAY TRADERS FINED

Daniel J. Drennan, Quinsboro' road, Bray, was, at Bray yesterday, fined £10 for selling an ounce of tobacco at one penny over the control price, and for not displaying a price list.

Mrs. Lillie Rice, Albert Walk, Bray, was fined £4 for selling a bar of cream chocolate at 3d., being a halfpenny over the control price, and for failing to display the price list.

Mrs. Pauline Rochford, Dargle road, Bray, was fined £2 10/-, with 6/- expenses, for selling a tallow candle at 4½d., being 1d. over the control price.

For failing to keep records in the sale of tea, butter and sugar, and for not displaying a tobacco price list, John Edward McKenzie, Blacklion, Greystones, and James Urell, Newcastle, Co. Wicklow, were each fined £6.

Vegetables For Next Year

By G. O. SHERRARD

CAULIFLOWERS and lettuce are two very acceptable vegetables in May, and steps should be taken now to produce them. The seed of the cauliflowers should be sown next week in a box filled with a compost of loam, peat and sand, with a dash of lime and phosphatic fertiliser mixed through it. It is risky to use either leaf mould or manure in the compost, as these may well harbour one of the fungi causing "damping off." After sowing the seed rather thinly, and just covering it with sifted soil, the box should be placed in a greenhouse or closed frame. If neither of these is available, a temporary protection of glass and boards can be rigged up, with or without a miniature hot-bed to induce the seed to germinate.

As soon as the seed is up ventilation should be given in suitable weather, and when the seedlings are beginning to show the first rough leaf they should be pricked off. The best place to put the seedlings is into four-inch pots, one to each pot, using a compost made slightly richer than that in the seed box by the addition of some hoof and horn meal or well-decayed manure. The pots should then be stood on a bed of ashes in a cold frame; ashes, peat mould or dry soil packed between them, and the frame kept closed for a few days. Afterwards the lights are removed, except on very cold days or when frost is probable at night.

Alternatively, the seedlings can be pricked off, three inches apart, directly into a bed, either in a frame or a cold greenhouse. If no glass is available the warmest corner of the garden can be used for a nursery bed and provision made for some temporary cover in the event of very hard weather. Wintering cauliflower plants must not be coddled and need ample ventilation, but they require protection from frost and slugs. The latter are bound to attack them as soon as they are pricked off. Slug bait should be put down in time.

SOWING LETTUCE

The lettuce seed should be sown in boxes in the same manner as the cauliflower. A box might be sown now and another in ten days' time and germinated in a cold greenhouse or frame. A bed of loam, old potting soil and peat, with a little manure of hoof and horn meal, is then made up in a frame. As soon as the seed leaves are fully developed, but before the rough leaves appear, the seedlings are pricked off into it, at two inches apart. Boxes may be used instead of a bed if the quantities are small, and these can be wintered in a cold greenhouse. This crop also should not be coddled in winter, but must not be exposed to rain.

The frames are ventilated by placing bricks under the lights in wet weather. In frosty weather they are kept closed, and when the frost is severe mats must be placed over the glass. The watering of this lettuce calls for care, and should be done in the morning, and only sufficiently to keep the soil moist. Decayed leaves, should they appear on the plants, must be removed at once.

The best variety of lettuce to use is May Queen or May King, and of cauliflower Early Erfurt or Early London. The lettuce should be planted out in the open early in February, and the cauliflower in mid-March. In each case, of course, favourable weather in which to perform the operation should be awaited.

Irish News in Brief

Corps of Engineers.—The Department of Defence announces that vacancies exist for appointments to temporary commissioned rank in the Army Corps of Engineers. Particulars appear in our advertisement columns.

Jail For Housebreaker.—At Kilmainham, yesterday, Daniel Kearney, no fixed address, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for having broken into the residence of James Kirwan, Rathcreedon, Rathcoole, and stolen boots, shirts and other articles.

Illegal Sale of Tea Alleged.—Mrs. Bridget Carthy, 3 Lower Dominick street, Dublin, was, in the Dublin Circuit Criminal Court, yesterday, before Judge Connelly, found not guilty of selling 118lb. of tea to Mary Keenan on December 27th, 1943, without having a wholesaler's licence. She also was found not guilty of selling 118lb. of tea at 14s. per lb.

Film Executives' Visit.—Mr. David E. Rose, Managing Director of Paramount Pictures, Ltd.; Mr. Fred Hutchinson, General Sales Manager, and other executives of the company, will be paying a visit to this country, arriving on Thursday next. Their purpose in coming over is "to renew their friendship with the Irish exhibitors."

Order Against Woman.—At Kilmainham, yesterday, District Justice Reddin granted Gerard Coffey, James's street, Dublin, a payment order of £1 per week against Mrs. Marjorie O'Byrne, St. Catherine's, Ballyboden, Rathfarnham, on foot of a High Court order for £125 14s. 0d. It was stated that Mrs. O'Byrne was in receipt of a weekly allowance of £2 10s. 0d. from her husband.

Orphan's Struggle To Keep Family

A sum of £16 has been subscribed and sent to District Justice McCarthy, of Dublin, to help an orphan girl who has been struggling to keep herself, her two young brothers and sister on 37s. 6d. a week.

Recently an application was made to have the children committed to an industrial school, but the District Justice adjourned the matter until Christmas to see how the young family progressed. Impressed by the great effort made by the eldest girl, a friend of District Justice McCarthy sent £10; workers of Hendron Bros. subscribed £4 4s., and there were two anonymous donors of £1 each.

District Justice McCarthy said yesterday at the Court that he would hold the money for the girl and she could draw on it for clothing and necessities. He also praised the action of the practical sympathisers.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE

The Dean of Ossory was the preacher at the Thanksgiving Evensong held yesterday in St. Bartholomew's Church, Clyde road, Dublin, to mark the eightieth anniversary of the parish. The Vicar, the Rev. Canon W. C. Simpson, officiated.

Gavin Low's Sheep Sale.—Smaller supplies yesterday. Demand slow, but a good clearance was made. Galway ewes made from 45/- to 60/- per head, crossbred ewes 50/- to 57/6, Cheviot ewes 42/6 to 55/-, b.f. horned ewes 16/- to 28/6, wethers 60/- to 80/-, rams 4 to 6 gns.

Livelier Markets in Dublin

USUALLY the last working day of the week is marked by week-end quietness, but yesterday, on the Dublin Stock Exchange, was an exception to the rule. Public interest was on a much broader scale, and markets presented a livelier appearance. There was scattered liquidation in evidence, and this produced a little irregularity in price movements. The undertone, however, remained firm.

Home Government Funds were mostly buyers, and a couple of strong features developed. 3¼ per cent. National Security advanced to 106¼, and 4 per cent. Land Bonds gained 15s. at 107¼, while the Third National Loan rose to 111. British Funds tended higher, and 3¼ per cent. War Loan improved to 104¼. Dublin Port and Docks 5 per cent. jumped a point to 117.

Banks were easier in places, but, exceptionally, Munster and Leinsters were still favoured, and spurted 1/- to 135/-. Hibernians dipped to 35/- and Nationals to 49/-.

Breweries enjoyed support, and Guinness added pence at 136/6, while Cairnes Pref. made headway to 25/3. Distillers Ord. moved up to 105/6. In Rails, Great Northern Ord. opened dull at 27⅝, but late support caused a recovery to 27⅞. The Pref. relapsed to 44¼, but the Guar. firmed up to 64¼. Great Southern Pref. hardened to 56¼, but the Deb. shaded off to 95⅝.

Todd Burns Ord. slumped 3/9 to 12/-, but other Drapery issues, where dealt in, held steady. Braids Ord. advanced 1/- to 41/- and Fry-Cadbury "A" Pref. 2/10 to 25/-, but Bovril Pref. shed pence at 21/-.

There was again a big turnover in Assoc. Properties New Pref., and they closed a shade harder at 11/3. Hugh Moore Pref. recovered to 22/6, and the rest of the Irish Industrials group made a steady showing.

B.A.T. Ord. improved to 118/3, and Imperial Tobacco Ord. held 160/-, while Carreras "B" Ord. quoted 19/11½. Coats Ord. and Courtaulds held their previous levels, Guest Keen Ord. eased to 37/7½, and R. Thomas Ord. quoted 37/7½ and Shell Transport Ord. 82/3.

Brewery Shares In Demand

THERE was an after hours inquiry, on New York account, reported for United of Havana issues, in anticipation of a reorganisation scheme. There was also a flare-up in the Shipping section, accompanied by hardly probable rumours of absorption offers for the Cairn Line, which, at 13s. 7½d., was 1s. 7d. higher; while Indo-China Def., at 15, was up ½.

Brewery shares were in demand at steadily advancing prices. Guinness rose 1s. 6d. to 136s. 6d., and advances of 1s. were shown by Taylor Walker, at 40s., and South African, at 118s.; while improvements of 6d. were marked in Charrington, at 65s. 6d., and Simonds, at 90s. 6d.

HOME RAILS ACTIVE

The comprehensive plan put forward by the railway companies for internal and European air services gave a fresh stimulus to the upward movement in their stocks. It is true that the companies are not expecting immediate profits. Indeed, at the outset their scheme is likely to make losses, but it is regarded as evidence of the spirit of enterprise in which the companies are prepared to meet the post-war needs of the country.

Business yesterday was on quite a large scale, and quotations closed at about the best, giving a good augury for the coming week. Great Western Ordinary at 58¼ compares with 56½ a week ago, Southern Def. at 25 with 23⅝, and L.M.S. Ord. at 30¼ with 28⅝. The Pref. stocks have also shared in the improvement.

BRITISH FUNDS FIRM

In other sections of the market there was little movement. British Funds were firm and steady, but apart from Brazilian issues, which were marked up further, Foreign Bonds were weak. German Loans were weaker on the withdrawal of recent speculative support and profit-taking, while the trend for Japanese Bonds was also slightly downwards, following their recent gains. Other Overseas stocks were without material change.

Oil shares had a quiet session, and there was little change in Industrial issues. A few aircraft shares were better, but the market leaders showed few changes. Electrical and Musical Industries Ord., following the overnight dividend statement, went back from about 37/- to 35/4½. British Celanese Ord. were weaker at 28/9. Gold shares attracted little attention, and, taking the section as a whole, price movements were very narrow.

PROFITS OF E.M.I.

Electrical and Musical Industries, Ltd., in a revised statement regarding its profits for 1943, shows a figure of £149,250, compared with £127,500 published last year.

The profit of the group, it is added, for the year ended June 30th last was £182,024 and compares with a figure of £174,357 for the previous year. The statement adds that these figures in each case are for results of twelve months' trading. The original statement, which gave no comparisons, led to the belief that profits had decreased, but this, it is now made clear, was not the case. The shares were back yesterday from 37/- to 35/3.

SERCK RADIATORS DIV.

Another satisfactory year is reported by Serck Radiators, Ltd., profits in the year to August 5th last, totalling £56,852, against £54,094 in the previous year. The dividend is again 15 per cent., with a cash bonus of 10 per cent., making 25 per cent. in all. This is the same as in the previous year, when the distribution was raised to 25 per cent., following four years at 22½ per cent. The company, which manufactures all kinds of heat transfer apparatus, has an issued capital of £200,000, all in £1 Ordinary stock units which have a market value of 53⁄8.

INVESTMENT TRUSTS

One of the most important of the Investment Trust Companies is the Scottish Mortgage and Investment Trust Co., Ltd., which yesterday announced the maintenance of its interim dividend at 3½ per cent. For some years this interim payment was followed by a final dividend of 6 per cent., but last year this was increased to 6½ per cent., making 10 per cent. against 9½ per cent. for the year. This increase was justified by the rise in net revenue after providing for taxation, from £79,000 to £85,028. After providing for the dividend the company was able to add £25,000 to the reserve, making it £650,000. The capital is £1,650,000. Of this £825,000 is in Ordinary stock, quoted at 245. At this price it gives a return of 4 per cent.

NEW YORK IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Friday.—A strong tone and moderately active trading were the opening features of the Stock Exchange. Leading issues edged higher, although laggards were plentiful. Dealings dwindled during the morning and towards mid-day gains ranging to one point were in the majority. The market was mixed during the afternoon and towards the close losses and gains, ranging to one point, were evenly divided. The trend at the close was irregular. The turnover of 684,000 shares comprised 856 issues, of which 356 advanced, 271 declined, and 229 remained unchanged.

DUBLIN GAS COMPANY

STOPPAGE OF GAS SUPPLY

The Company regrets to announce that, owing to an unofficial and lightning strike by employees in the production plants, the manufacture of gas ceased at 2 o'clock p.m. yesterday (Friday). The gas supply hours will be maintained until the gas stock is exhausted, which, it is anticipated, will be between 12.30 and 1 p.m. to-day (Saturday). No further supply will then be available until the employees return to work. Gas pressures in the Blackrock and Dun Laoghaire areas will forthwith be too low for use, and the Bray area supply ceased after the evening period yesterday (Friday).

Issued by the Dublin Gas Company.

CITIZENS

Ask yourselves "What is behind this?"

The Workers' Union, controlled by James Larkin, has called my men out on strike without giving me a moment's notice. They claim to have made an agreement with some group of farmers, but at a conference in the Department of Industry and Commerce on Tuesday admitted there was no such agreement. Here are the terms the Union want:—

50/- per week; weekly half-holiday; Catholic holidays with pay, and payment for overtime.

Here are the terms I have been giving:—

Wages, 50/- per week since February last. In addition I have been giving weekly half-holiday, payment for overtime, and all Catholic holidays with pay for over 20 years.

Why are my men on strike and my crops left to rot?

I would ask readers for suggestions and support to combat this tyranny. If I go down to-day they will be attacked to-morrow. I will stand firm.

DUBLIN COURT APPEALS

When Patrick Whelan (31), Lower Gardiner street, Dublin, appealed in the Dublin Circuit Civil Court yesterday against a conviction and sentence of nine months' imprisonment imposed on him for the larceny, by a trick, of two sums, totalling £12, Judge Davitt affirmed the conviction, but reduced the sentence to six months.

An appeal by Joseph O'Reilly, bus driver, Lower Gardiner street, Dublin, against conviction and sentence of one month's imprisonment, and a fine of £50, for selling tyres without a licence, and offering tyres for sale at 35/- per pair, was dismissed.

£306 FOR HAIRDRESSER

Mrs. Mary A. Kane, hairdresser, St. Helen's, Meath road, Bray, who was injured when a bus, in which she was a passenger, was involved in a collision with a tramcar at the junction of Ailesbury road and Merrion road, Dublin, on March 8th last, is to be paid £306 and a sum for costs by the Dublin United Transport Company in settlement of her action against them for damages. This was stated to the Master of the High Court yesterday.

Messrs. O'Connell, Rooney and Co. were solicitors for Mrs. Kane; and Messrs. James O'Connor and Co. were solicitors for the company.

1699 LEASE RECALLED

A lease of November 30th, 1699, between Viscount Shannon and Mrs. Sarah Boyle, of Bandon, was referred to in the Supreme Court, Dublin, yesterday, in an appeal in a summons claiming possession of part of the lands of Kilnagleary, Co. Cork. Lord Shannon assigned lands to Mrs. Boyle, with reservations of royalties, goods and chattels "of all persons that shall be attained and outlawed, the goods of fugitives and felons and treasures trove."

Mrs. Boyle was to maintain and keep resident on the premises one able horse and horseman, well armed with sword and pistols, to attend the Viscount at all musters and general meetings for the service of the Crown and defence of the country when and so often as he or they should be summoned or warned.

The appeal, the hearing of which had not concluded when the Court adjourned, was on behalf of Mrs. Florence Swan, Red Tiles, Shirley Drive, Hove, Sussex, and was from a judgment of the High Court dismissing her summons against Mr. H. W. B. Roberts, farmer, Mount Rivers, Carrigaline, and Major T. P. Morgan, Kilnagleary, claiming possession of part of the lands of Kilnagleary.

£200 for Roscrea Man.—Martin Loughnane, Roscrea, was, at Nenagh Circuit Court, by consent, awarded £200 damages, with costs, for injuries received while employed by the Roscrea Meat Products Co.

Ladies' and Gent's cloakrooms, with wash-hand basins (h. & c.) and w.c. Second and third floors contain 6 rooms, bathroom (h. & c.), wash-hand basin, w.c. The kitchen fitted with "Super Simplex" Range, on the ground floor, is fully fitted and equipped with service hatch to Café and service lift to Diningroom. Electric light laid on. There are separate entrances to Café, upper part, kitchen and stores. The premises are ideally situated for the business, and a most lucrative trade has been carried on there for many years past. Audited accounts (prepared by Messrs. R. R. Power and Co., Auditors, 16 Lower O'Connell Street) are available for inspection, together with an Inventory of the furniture, fittings and equipment. The Auctioneers, who have inspected the premises, have no hesitation in recommending same to intending purchasers who are anxious to secure a business of this nature in a central position.

N.B.—It has been publicly announced that the Abbey Theatre is to be reconstructed after the cessation of the war, and as the Café is situated directly opposite the theatre entrance this should be of incalculable benefit to the future business of the Café. Seen daily on Order by appointment. Further particulars Auctioneers, or

TRENCH ESTATE.
CHARMING RESIDENTIAL MODERATE-SIZED FARM.

THE Owner has favoured us with instructions TO SELL BY AUCTION, the Residential Property of ASHFIELD, BALLYBRITTAS, LEIX,

On FRIDAY, 3rd NOVEMBER, 1944, containing 70a. 1r. 34p., on which there is a very good Residence, with out-offices. The House is a well constructed building, non-basement, containing 4 reception rooms, 5 bedrooms, 4 dressingrooms, bathroom (h. & c.), and servants' rooms, and is approached from the main road by a nice short carriage drive, on which there is a good slated lodge. The garden contains about an Irish acre, is well stocked with fruit trees, and has a good vinery. The out-offices, which are principally slated, comprise stabling for 8 horses, shedding for 28 cattle, substantial barn with loft, 2 open sheds, turnip shed, boiler house with boiler, also dairy, garage, harness room, grooms' quarters, turf house and fowl house.

The Lands are of good quality, with no waste, and, having been liberally treated with farmyard manure, are in good heart.

This property, on which there is a quantity of matured timber, is ideally situated on the main Dublin and Limerick bus route, near Ballybrittas, where are churches and schools, and is about 3 miles from Portarlington.

The property offered for sale is the interest under a Lease for the term of One Thousand Years from the date thereof to be made by the Vendor to the Purchaser at the yearly rent of £10, and subject to the Covenant on the Lessee's part and conditions to be contained in the said Lease. The property is also subject to an annual Ecclesiastical Tithe Rent Charge of £2 16s. 10d., payable to the Irish Land Commission.

SALE ON THE LANDS AT 2.30 P.M.

GLOVET AND RATHMULLAN, CO. DOWN.

VERY ATTRACTIVE AND SUPERIOR FARMS OF LAND, COMPRISING 235 ACRES, FOR SALE BY PUBLIC AUCTION.

SAMUEL WILSON, Esq., J.P., has instructed us to SELL BY PUBLIC AUCTION, on the Premises, on WEDNESDAY, 25th day of OCTOBER, 1944, at the hour of One o'clock, those very valuable Farms of Land situate in the Townlands of Glovet and Rathmullan, as follows:—

LOT 1.—Farm of Land situate in the Townland of Glovet, containing 81a. 1r. 1p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts, held in Fee-Simple, subject to the Annuity of £41 3s. 0d., payable to the Ministry of Finance. Poor Law Valuation, £93 10s. 0d.

LOT 2—Farm of Land situate in the Townlands of Rathmullan, Lower and Upper, containing 153a. 1r. 27p., Statute Measure, or thereabouts, held in Fee-Simple, subject to the Annuity of £73 15s. 8d. payable to the Ministry of Finance. Poor Law Valuation, £160 10s. 0d.

All the Lands adjoin and have been worked together as one lot, and have been excellently farmed by the owner for many years. The Lands, intersected by the County road, are of very superior quality, fell fenced, drained and exceptionally well watered, and are renowned for their good cropping and grazing qualities.

The Dwellinghouse, known as Sea View Cottage, is charmingly situated on an elevated position overlooking Dundrum Bay and the Mourne Mountains. The farm buildings are extensive and in good repair. There is a large hay shed on the holding.

Possession will be given on 1st November, 1944.

The Lands will be offered for Sale separately or together.

The Farms are situate about 2 miles from Ballynoe Railway Station and 5 miles from the market town of Downpatrick.

For particulars as to Title and Conditions of Sale, apply to:—

MARTIN & HENDERSON, Solicitors, Downpatrick.

WM. MORRISON & SON,
Auctioneers and Valuers,
DOWNPATRICK and CROSSGAR.
Phone: Downpatrick 168; Crossgar 207.

NOTE.—The Sale of this extensive Farm, which is one of the most fertile in the Barony of Lecale, offers a splendid opportunity to anyone requiring a good holding which can be profitably run on mechanised lines.

IN MEMORIAM

BURGESS—In memory of our dearly-loved mother, Emma A. E. Burgess, 14th October, 1933.—Emma and Dick.

CONERNEY—In ever-loving memory of the Reverend P. Pirrie Conerney, who entered into rest on 14th October, 1939.

DOYLE—Fifth Anniversary—In ever-loving memory of John C. Doyle (J.C.), Glendhu, 11 Lindsay road, Dublin, who died October 14th, 1939. Deeply and deservedly regretted by his loving wife and family. Our Lady of Mount Carmel and Saint Ignatius, intercede for him.

McCORD—Second Anniversary—In sad and loving memory of our dear son, Edward Alexander (Eddie), called Home October 15th, 1942.

"We know not why death's frosty fingers
Touched a soul so sweet;
The story of that life was brief and incomplete,
And yet God cut that strong, green stem
That held youth's opening flower."

McMILLAN—In abiding love and remembrance of my dear husband, William McMillan, who was called Home on 14th October, 1938.

His happy spirit seems our comrade yet,
Forbidding us to mourn or to forget.

SMITH—First Anniversary—In sad and ever-loving memory of my dear husband, William Smith, late of 4 Kingsland Park avenue, and Metropole Restaurant, who departed this life October 14th, 1943. Masses offered.

"We stood beside his dying bed,
And saw him fade away;
We tended him with broken hearts,
We could not make him stay.
His gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall;
He had a kind word for each,
And died beloved by all."

Sadly missed by his loving wife and family.

SWEENEY (Glenties)—First anniversary of our eldest son, Thomas Oliver, medical student, R.C.S.I., who died October 14, 1943.

With a broken heart we said farewell,
As the shadow of death drew near,
And took from our home but not from our hearts,
The one that we loved so dear,
As we loved him, so we miss him,
Ever in our memory dear,
Loved, remembered, always prayed for,
Bringing many a silent tear.

Queen of the Most Holy Rosary intercede for him. Little Flower of Jesus pray for him. Masses offered. Inserted by his loving mam and dad, brothers and sister.

SWEENEY (Glenties)—First Anniversary—In loving memory of my dear brother, Thomas Oliver, who died 14th October, 1943. Queen of the Most Holy Rosary intercede for him. Masses offered. Inserted by his loving sister, Chris, and brother-in-law.

WOODS—In loving memory of Samuel Woods.

But, God, Whose Name be ever blessed,
Disarms that foe we dread,
And makes us conquerors when we die,
Through Christ, our Living Head.

FOR AUCTION ON THE SAME DATE,
By direction of DR. MATTHEW MAUGHAN,
27 HARCOURT STREET, DUBLIN.

Unquestionably one of the finest City Houses at present for sale. The whole is in faultless condition, and would be suitable for private occupation, flats, or executive offices. The drawingrooms would make a very fine boardroom. Most attractive Adam and other mantelpieces are installed throughout the house, and a feature are the wonderfully preserved and beautifully executed ceiling decorations. All conveniences are to be found in the house, which is fitted with copper piping and modern, enclosed electric wiring throughout.

The accommodation consists of:—Ground Floor—Imposing entrance hall, very fine wrought iron staircase, doctor's consulting room, fitted with washbasin, and waiting room (the original study and diningroom); 2 other rooms at the back, lavatory accommodation. First Floor Return—2 Bedrooms, with private bathroom and w.c. First Floor—2 Very fine drawingrooms, inter-communicating. The second and third floors have been converted into a self-contained flat, but this accommodation could be reinstated by the removal of the partition. In this flat there are 5 exceptionally good rooms, kitchen, hot press, bathroom and w.c. Basement—Large kitchen, Beeston boiler, lift to diningroom, scullery, wash room, maid's room, 3 coal cellars, etc. Outside—W.c., large double garage at rear, with loft over.

No outlay whatever is required on this house, and vacant possession will be given to a purchaser. View only by appointment with the Auctioneers.

Held on Lease for 999 years from 29th September, 1839, subject to a Ground Rent of £22 12s. 1d. P.L.V. £68.
